

7.2 Million Low Paid Workers Will Gain $2.3 Billion Yearly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 7.3 million low-income workers will add $2.3 billion to their pay Thursday as the second stage of a five-year increase in federal wage minimums goes into effect.

Workers engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for interstate commerce employed in large enterprises will have their wages increased from $1.40 an hour to $1.60 an hour under the new regulations.

Some 33 million workers—mainly in manufacturing, transportation, wholesale trade, large retail stores, finance, insurance and real estate—are affected but in reality only some 6 million will get an increase in pay. The others already make more than the minimum.

Another 8.5 million workers—those employed in the service industries such as hospitals, nursing homes, smaller retail stores, laundries, restaurants, hotels and on larger farms—will be affected by an increase in their minimum wage from $1 an hour to $1.15 an hour. Some 1.3 million of these will see actual increases in their pay.

The minimums for those workers will increase by 15 cents every year until $1.60 an hour is reached on Feb. 1, 1971.

Workers in public schools, hospitals and other state institutions are covered by the wage standards passed last year but a federal judge in Baltimore issued a restraining order until the Supreme Court rules in a test case. The high court agreed last month to hear the case.

Maryland and Texas, speaking also for 26 other states, challenged the extension of federal minimum wage and hour standards to state employees.

The latest increases again brought some protests of higher costs and smaller work forces but many spokesmen for the industries affected said they already were meeting the minimum standards. The Labor Department tended to agree with the latter group.

In Chicago, a spokesman for Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center said: "There is no question hospital charges will go up. . . . When labor costs rise there is only one place the hospital can get additional income—from the patients."

Harry Bodker, owner of De Luxe Drive-in Laundry and Cleaners in Kansas City, Kan., said since laundry workers are now coming under the $1.15 an hour law "We're raising our prices by a penny a shirt."

Fred Collins, manager of Ramada Inns in Atlanta, said: "The federal government is making a mistake. First of all, we must cut our staff and then I think an increase in the price of rooms will follow almost immediately."

The manager of a Kroger grocery store in Atlanta said he will cut out all overtime and hire additional parttime help to avoid the higher overtime rates.

Under the new provisions, workers making $1.60 an hour minimum are entitled to time and one-half pay after 40 hours a week.

North Korean Leader Hints Pueblo Crew May Be Released

SEOUL (AP) — A Communist North Korean leader hinted Wednesday that the crew of the Pueblo might be released under certain conditions. He said future developments in the Korean crisis depend on the United States.

The radio at Pyongyang, the capital of North Korea, said Kim Kwang Hyup, secretary of the Central Committee of the North Korean Workers (Communist) party, mentioned the capture of the intelligence ship at a reception for a Romanian Communist party delegation.

"It is a miscalculation if the U.S. imperialists think that they can solve the incident of the intrusion of the Pueblo into the territorial waters of our country by military threats or by the method of aggressive war or through illegal discussion at the United Nations.

"It will be a different story if they want to solve this question by method of the previous practice. But they will get nothing if they persist in their present method."

Kim did not say what he meant by previous practice. But on the receipt of a U.S. apology two crewmen of a U.S. Army helicopter shot down when it strayed over North Korea were released in May 1964. That, however, was a year after their capture.

In Tokyo, an official of a North Korean organization said he believed the crew will be released if the United States admits it violated territorial waters and promises not to repeat the incident.

The official, Paik Hang-ki, deputy chief of the foreign affairs section of the Federation of Korean Residents in Japan, said his view was unofficial but he noted Pyongyang had demanded a U.S. apology. His federation maintains contacts with North Korea.

In Seoul, Foreign Minister Choi Kyu-hah indicated his government was displeased with the handling of the Korean crisis by the United States.

He said more attention should be paid to the North Korean attempt to assassinate President Chung Hee Park Jan. 21 than to the seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship.

His government will object to any direct talks between the United States and North Korea on any proposal to exchange the Pueblo crew for North Korean infiltrators, he declared at a news conference.

Intelligence sources reported 88 North Korean infiltrators were captured last year and 17 surrendered.

"A basic settlement of the current crisis lies in taking firm measures to assure the security of the Republic of Korea and prevent recurrence of any provocative acts by the North Korean regime," Choi said.

Lee Byung-doo, deputy director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, declared that any retaliatory measures taken as a result of the two incidents should be strong.

Emphasizing he was not recommending such action, Lee told reporters that any U.S. retaliation must come in the form of heavy air strikes on all major North Korean cities.

It would not do just to attack only one city, say the port of Wonsan where the Pueblo is held, he said, because "the moment North Korea is bombed by the United States they will invade the South."

Viet Cong Pay With 5,000 Dead In Guerrilla Strikes

SAIGON (AP) — The Communists have paid with nearly 5,000 dead in their frenzied guerrilla strikes at Saigon and other major centers throughout South Vietnam this week, the U.S. Command said Thursday.

A soaring general casualty toll was announced as the third day of the coordinated Communist campaign brought new clashes in outlying sections of Saigon and heavy action in other parts of the country.

Command spokesman said 4,959 enemy were killed in action from 6 p.m. Monday to midnight Wednesday. Another 1,862 persons were seized as Viet Cong suspects.

U.S. casualties for the period were listed as 232 killed and 929 wounded. South Vietnamese government casualties were 300 killed and 747 wounded, spokesman said.

Other allied casualties were put at three killed and 22 wounded.

South Vietnamese authorities said 660 Viet Cong were killed in Saigon alone in less than two days of fighting. There was no immediate word on the number of civilian casualties in the capital or elsewhere across the nation, but they were believed to have been heavy.

Downtown Saigon was quiet early Thursday, but skirmishing continued in suburban areas and bands of Viet Cong, some disguised in government uniforms, roamed the city.

The Communists captured part of Hue, the old imperial capital 400 miles north of Saigon, and seized control of half of Kontum in the central highlands. Two other major cities along the coastline in the north, Nha Trang and Qui Nhon, came under fresh mortar attacks and ground probes for the third straight

Nixon Is Expected To Announce Candidacy

NEW YORK (AP) — Everything points to it: Richard M. Nixon will announce Thursday his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination, and leave immediately on a campaign swing through New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Oklahoma.

The three states afford the first tests of the strength of the former vice president, leader in all the polls of GOP voters. He carried all three states in his narrow 1960 loss to John F. Kennedy for the presidency.

New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary is March 12. The Wisconsin primary follows on April 2. Oklahoma holds the first GOP state convention on Feb. 24, to elect delegates to the August Miami Beach convention.

A spokesman in Nixon's New York headquarters said only that he will have a statement on his candidacy, but the campaign schedule left no doubt about its nature.

Nixon holds a news conference in Manchester, N.H., on Friday, and on Saturday attends President Nguyen Van Thieu declared martial law throughout the nation in the wake of the Wednesday attacks against the U.S. Embassy and military and civilian installations from Hue to the Mekong Delta.

a Manchester reception with his wife and daughters and address a Nixon for President dinner in Concord.

Nixon's New Hampshire manager, State Rep. David Sterling had said he would file the papers in Concord to put Nixon's name on the ballot.

The only other major candidate on the ballot will be Gov. George Romney of Michigan, who returns to New Hampshire Sunday for a third campaign swing. There may be write-in campaigns for Gov. Ronald Reagan of California and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, both noncandidates.

Nixon has chartered a jet to fly him from New Hampshire to Wisconsin on Monday, where he has set up a news conference, television interview and dinner speech in Green Bay. On Tuesday he will breakfast in Appleton, speak to Wisconsin State University students in Stevens Point, and address a Lincoln Day dinner at St. Mary's School in Fond du Lac.

On Wednesday he will fly to Oklahoma City, where he will have a news conference, television interview and dinner speech in Green Bay. On Tuesday he will breakfast in Appleton, speak to Wisconsin State University students in Stevens Point, and address a Lincoln Day dinner at St. Mary's School in Fond du Lac.

Johnson Reserves Response To Red Terror Attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration held in reserve Wednesday a broad response to the Red terror attacks throughout South Vietnam pending more information on the outcome of the Communist assaults.

The White House disclosed President Johnson met Tuesday night with the Senate and House Republican leaders, received intelligence reports during the night on the attacks on the Saigon embassy and other targets, and breakfasted Wednesday morning with senior members of the Senate and House Armed Services and Appropriations committees.

Press secretary George Christian said the President told the congressional leaders of both parties that the Asian crisis might require him to propose special measures which he hopes would be considered in a nonpartisan atmosphere.

However, the presidential spokesman said Johnson did not discuss any specific measures, and he emphasized there may be no need for such proposals.

Sitting in at the White House meetings, which were also reported to have dealt with the North Korean-Pueblo ship seizure, were such administration leaders as Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Administration spokesmen generally confined their public appraisal of the terrorist raids on South Vietnam's cities to stressing that the true-time assaults must have been well planned in advance.

At the State Department, press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the United States is still actively seeking peace negotiations with North Vietnam. A diplomatic move has been under way since Hanoi announced a month ago it will enter into talks if the bombing of North Vietnam is halted.

McCloskey declined to say whether any military retaliation is planned against the Reds for their wave of attacks on U.S. installations and population centers in South Vietnam.

Washington strategists were still scanning reports of continued guerrilla assaults during the declared lunar new year cease-fire—and keeping an eye out for domestic reaction in the United States.

One of the main Communist objectives in striking at the American embassy in Saigon and other U.S. installations of secondary military value, it is believed here, has been psychological: To stir up U.S. public demands that the U.S. forces get out of Vietnam.

Some Washington officials figured that the terrorist blows would have a two-way effect—increasing opposition among those already critical of Johnson's policy, but also increasing demands among others for step-up in U.S. action.

The Reds were also believed to be trying to shake the confidence of the South Vietnamese city populations in the ability of government forces to defend

Egypt Says Troops Make Ship Release Impossible

CAIRO (AP) — An Egyptian spokesman insisted Wednesday that the entire Suez Canal must be surveyed before 15 stranded foreign ships can be released. He said firing by Israeli troops made the task impossible.

Mohamed Hassan el Zayat told a news conference the trapped vessels would remain blocked in the 107-mile canal until it can be determined if they should be released through Port Said at the canal's northern end or the Suez outlet in the south.

He said the stranded American ship Observer wanted to leave through Port Said.

Israeli and Egyptian guns exchanged fire Tuesday after Egyptian boats tried to survey the northern half of the canal. Israel has agreed that the canal's southern end can be cleared of sunken vessels to free the 15 stranded ships, but says any clearing operations in the northern end violate a cease-fire agreement that neither Egyptian nor Israeli forces would use the canal.

Israel, with troops stationed on the canal's east bank, has said it is willing to negotiate reopening of the Suez Canal to all shipping if Israeli vessels can use it, too. Egypt has refused to discuss such an agreement.

The 15 foreign ships were caught in the canal during the June 5-10 Middle East war when other vessels sunk during the fighting blocked the waterway.

Battle Techniques Needed To Win War on Crime

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — If the United States is to win its war on crime, it must adopt some of the techniques used by the military in battle.

That's the opinion of Charles L. Newman, head of the Center for Law Enforcement and Corrections at Pennsylvania State University's College of Human Development.

Foremost in these techniques is the development of an "ROTC-type counterpart for an officer corps in the administration of a justice system," he believes.

Pointing to the critical deficit of professionally trained personnel to cope with law enforcement, probation, correctional institutions and parole, Newman said:

"There should be established in every major land grant university in the United States a federally sponsored and supported program for the development of a cadre of professionally trained administration of justice corpsmen who could be moved rapidly into critical positions in the justice system subsequent to the completion of professional education at the undergraduate level."

He called attention to a 1967 report of the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice dealing with manpower shortages in the field, which found these requirements:

—Doubling the pool of juvenile probation officers.

—Tripling the number of probation officers working with adult felons.

—Increasing seven-fold the number of officers working with misdemeanants.

—Recruitment of 50,000 policemen just to fill positions already authorized.

As an ultimate goal, the commission recommended that all police personnel with general enforcement powers have baccalaureate degrees.

In his ROTC-type programs, Newman calls for instructors drawn from university faculties and from agencies of the judicial system.

"These programs would differ from the academy type of programs in that the emphasis would be placed on leadership, development of new programs, and the introduction of new ideas into the law enforcement and correctional apparatus," he said.

"Students enrolled in such a program as part of their university education would receive sponsorship by way of tuition remission and/or financial assistance from the federal government, in much the same way that subsidies to medical students and other critically short professional personnel such as social workers currently receive."

Newman believes support should be provided by the federal government to assist the university in maintaining the training programs.

"In return for this subsidy," he said, "the student would be committed to a period of employment in the administration of justice area. Service in the Justice Corps would be an alternative to service in the armed services, since this would involve an area of national protection similar to that fulfilled by various branches of the military."

Newman emphasized his proposal "in no way suggests a national police force or federal control of the apparatus for the administration of justice in the various states."

"It does recognize, however, the extremely critical state of manpower availability and involves the resources of the federal government on an organized and planned basis to develop personnel for manpower needs in battling crime."

Other military methods to be used in the war on crime would be development of common objectives, an effective plan of attack, mobilization of entire communities, and refining intelligence systems to recognize the enemy and devise means of dealing with the varied types creating the major problems.

"We can't afford to lose this war on crime," Newman stressed. "To win it, we need highly trained men and women and money to provide the essential weapons."

And the training, he said, is the responsibility of the nation's colleges and universities.

Shafer Will Present Annual Budget on Feb. 7

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer Wednesday scheduled his 1967-68 budget message for Feb. 7 and told the Republican legislative leadership his administration was confronted with some $178 million in mandated spending increases.

The outline of Shafer's new spending program, expected to exceed $2 billion for the first time in history, was reviewed at a meeting with Senate Majority Leader Stanley G. Stroup; Senate President Pro Tempore Robert D. Fleming; House Majority Leader Lee A. Donaldson Jr., and House Majority Whip Robert J. Butera.

The lawmakers were summoned back to Harrisburg for a one-day session to receive the budget. The Legislature has been in recess during most of January so the Constitutional Convention could use its facilities.

Shafer again told the leadership he would propose no new taxes for 1967-68 and recalled the warning in his State of the Commonwealth message last Jan. 2.

The governor at that time told the General Assembly he would veto any new spending bill that could not be met by existing revenue unless it were accompanied by a specific tax measure to pay for it.

The governor again advised the lawmakers that he had some $500 million in increased spending requests on his desk but expected to have only $200 million to $220 million in extra revenue to meet them.

Of the requests, some $330 million was for basic and higher education; $80 million for health and welfare, and $90 million for other services, including General State Authority rentals, state employee salary increases, and 6,700 additional state employees.

Church Court Suspends Couple Indefinitely from Membership

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — A church court found a professor and his wife guilty of "disrupting the peace and unity" of Iowa City's century-old First Presbyterian Church Wednesday and suspended them indefinitely from membership.

The four clergymen and three laymen, of a special commission sitting as judge and jury, convicted Prof. Joseph E. Baker, 62, and his wife, Matilda, of charges that they disrupted the congregation with their campaign to prevent the 112-year-old brick church from being torn down to make way for a new one.

Baker immediately served notice of appeal to the Iowa Presbyterian Synod.

The judgment of the commission bars the Bakers from holding membership, church office or receiving communion. It specifies that they may be reconsidered for membership after a sufficient showing of "repentance."

Baker, an English professor at the University of Iowa, said it was strange to him to be judged by "a court that does not allow the defendant time to offer his defense, nor to be tried by a jury of his peers, nor to have an impartial judge."

Nearing Agreement On Court Setup

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Constitutional Convention's Judiciary Committee appeared to be nearing agreement late Wednesday on a package of proposals to overhaul and unify Pennsylvania's court system.

There were still some rough edges to be smoothed out, but former Gov. William W. Scranton and Gustave G. Amsterdam of Philadelphia, committee co-chairmen, said the package would be put to a final vote Thursday.

In a major development Wednesday, the committee voted, 22-13, to permit Allegheny County to determine by local option election whether it wants to retain the minor judiciary system or change to a system of community courts.

As the revised proposal now stands, every county but Philadelphia would be given this option.

Philadelphia would be required to abolish its magistrates courts, replacing them with a 22-judge municipal court and a six-judge traffic court.

Other features of the plan would reduce the number of justices of the peace in counties that elect to retain them; abolish the fee system; and establish mandatory training programs for all members of the minor judiciary.

By law, the convention must complete its work by Feb. 29.

Penn Central Speeds Down The Track

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The world's largest privately owned railroad officially got the green light Thursday—and sped down the track under its new name, whistles shrieking, at exactly one minute past midnight.

"Just call us Penn Central," read buttons worn by employees of the new Pennsylvania New York Central Transportation Co., the result of a merger nearly 12 years in the making.

"Penn Central . . . Penn Central . . . Penn Central," responded operators at depots all over the East and Midwest where trains took passengers over tracks of the PRR and NYC.

Those old symbols are now part of railroad history.

The main headquarters of the Penn Central—a Pennsylvania corporation with the PRR the surviving member—will be in Philadelphia. Here, on Thursday afternoon, the new, combined board—14 from the PRR and 10 from the Central—meets for the first time to elect, formally, officers previously agreed upon.

Stuart T. Saunders, of the 121-year-old Pennsy and regarded as the chief architect of the merger, stays on as board chairman and chief executive officer of the Penn Central.

Alfred E. Perlman, the powerful and very efficient head of the 114-year-old New York Central, takes over as president and chief operating officer.

Saigon Is Now A City Under Martial Law

SAIGON (AP) — Where there was light and gaiety, there was now darkness and gloom. Where there was the sound of music and laughter there was the thump of guns and the roar of aircraft.

This was Saigon Wednesday night, a city under martial law. An abrupt halt came to the capital's gaudy, noisy night life. Only one restaurant in a leading hotel was open in the downtown section. The rows of bars, souvenir shops and other businesses that cater largely to American GIs were dark and shuttered. The sidewalk stalls that sell everything from pocket knives to tudes painted on black velvet were gone.

The contrast was even greater than might have been normal because the halt came in the midst of the celebration of the lunar new year. This is a holiday that brings unusually large throngs to the streets, crowding theaters, night clubs and restaurants.

But now it was different. There were no girls in miniskirts in the bars and clubs, counting their tabs for their sales of "Saigon tea," the non-alcoholic beverage that flows while GIs pay for whisky.

There were no noisy motorbikes and their long-haired drivers lining the curbs.

No rows of neon signs.

Only military patrols moved along the empty streets. There were no pedestrians but for soldiers and police, and a few venturesome civilians moving as part of their jobs.

Barbed wire barricades were at intersections and around government and military installations. Guards were increased.

After a day in which the city was shelled by the Viet Cong and invaded by guerrilla commandos most people stayed off the streets on their own.

Correction Noted

In Wednesday's Ludlow Area News by Mrs. Hildur Wenstran, an error was noted in the account of the Hamilton Township PTA meeting. Instead of $45 listed as the amount of a cake walk recently held, it should have read $80.45.

Mayor Wants City Hall Under Construction Soon

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — Mayor Charles B. Magnuson in a statement issued Wednesday concerning a new city hall said his administration is anxious to get construction of the new municipal structure underway.

He added, however, he does not want to be forced into a hasty decision. The first order of business the mayor said is a thorough study and review of the cost estimates which could result if one of the top floors is eliminated.

Two weeks ago the mayor stated the city of Jamestown must not delay too long; otherwise the cost of the building could increase by as much as eight to ten percent. Councilman Warren Erickson, however, has openly opposed Magnuson, claiming the plans call for space and other facilities that are not presently needed.

As reported Tuesday, Jamestown architect Warren B. Howard said Monday night the construction estimates remain the same for the original $3.8 million structure. The $3.8 million price tag does not include the cost of demolishing the old city hall, furnishings for the new facility or the architects' fees. The latter are expected to increase the total cost of the project by approximately a million dollars.

Linders Will Go To Sweden To Visit Son

STROUDSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Lindner of Mount Pocono plan to fly to Sweden Thursday night to visit their son, Michael, one of four American seamen who jumped ship in Japan.

Michael, 19, and the other seaman went to Sweden seeking political asylum after traveling through Russia. They said they deserted their ship, the USS Enterprise, to protest American involvement in the Vietnam war.

The Lindners have taken a leave of absence from their jobs at the Tobyhanna Army Depot near here for the two-week trip.

Mrs. Lindner said Wednesday the main purpose of the visit is to "establish communications once again with our son."

"I've hardly known what to say, and I'm sure Michael feels the same way," she said. "We want to open up lines of communications which have been lacking in the past. If we can just do this much, the trip will be very worthwhile."

They plan to fly from New York's John F. Kennedy Airport about 8 p.m.

Rembrandt Portrait Has Been Stolen

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Rembrandt's 300-year-old "Portrait of a Young Man," valued at more than $100,000, was stolen from the Eastman House Museum, police said Wednesday.

Police said they believed more than one man was involved in the theft because the painting and its frame weighed more than 150 pounds.

The frame was found hanging on a fence adjoining the museum, soon after the theft was discovered.

Three Injured In 2-Car Crash On Route 6

Three persons were injured Wednesday in a two car crash, just west of Clarendon on Route 6 in Mead township according to state police of the local substation.

Listed in satisfactory condition at Warren General Hospital are Joyce Lou Abraham, 19, of RDI, Clarendon, Gary Rudolph, 24, of RDI, Clarendon, a passenger in the Abraham vehicle, and Lawrence Edward Linder of 105 Monroe st., Warren.

The accident occurred at 6:32 p.m. police said, when a car operated by Miss Abraham, traveling west, went off the north berm and out of control. The Abraham vehicle skidded across the highway, police said, struck a car operated by Linder, spun around and landed on the north berm.

Damages in the accident totaled $1700, according to police, with damages to the Abraham vehicle estimated at $1,000 and damages to the Linder machine set at $700.

TWA Jetliner Strikes Wires, Regains Altitude

CHICAGO (AP) — A Trans World Airlines jetliner carrying 36 persons struck high-tension lines west of O'Hare International Airport Wednesday night while trying to land in the fog, but regained altitude and was diverted to an Indiana airport.

The high-tension lines were in suburban Elk Grove Village. Electric service in the area was cut off.

A TWA spokesman said the four-engine jet Convair 880 was Flight 176 en route to Chicago from San Francisco. He said it carried 29 passengers and a crew of seven.

The TWA spokesman said the plane attempted a flyby of the O'Hare tower in an attempt to assess the damage to the plane.

Weakened Interest of Public In Space Program Worrisome

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the 10th anniversary of the launching of Explorer I, the first U.S. satellite, two leaders of that project said Wednesday they are greatly concerned at decreasing interest by the public in the space program.

Dr. William H. Pickering, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif., who built the experiment payload for Explorer I, told the National Press Club it is inconceivable that the United States, having developed great proficiency in space, should fall to push forward with research and exploration programs.

Dr. Werner von Braun, head of the Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala., told the same audience there is a "disturbing similarity" to the circumstances prevailing in 1957 before the Soviet Union launched Sputnik I, the world's first satellite.

Both men were here in connection with a celebration of the 10th anniversary of the Explorer launching.

Pickering said public interest in the space program appears to have dropped alarmingly in recent years.

Chemical Can Help Prevent Tooth Decay

NEW YORK (AP) — Tooth decay can be prevented in animals by putting a harmless chemical in their food and water, dental researchers reported Wednesday.

The discovery "may well be a major breakthrough in the control of dental caries (decay)," an editorial in the Journal of the American Dental Association declares.

The chemical is an enzyme, dextranase, that breaks down dextran. And dextran is a main ingredient in sticky "plaques," containing bacteria, that form on teeth to initiate the process of decay.

The plaques in turn can harden into calculus or tartar, setting the stage for destructive gum disease that causes enormous loss of teeth and gums and bone.

The new findings therefore hold promise of combatting both tooth decay and periodontal or gum disease. Human tests of the new approach are planned, the research team said, to try to find whether dextranase can be a useful and safe agent to fight tooth decay and gum disease.

The findings by Dr. Robert J. Fitzgerald, Dr. Paul H. Keyes, and Diane M. Spinnel, M.S., all of the National Institute of Dental Research, Bethesda, Md., and Dr. Thomas J. Stout of Merck, Sharp and Dohme Research Laboratories, Rahway, N.J., are described in the February issue of the dental association journal.

The enzyme treatment is "not a panacea for all plaques," even if it works well in humans, Dr. Keyes said in a telephone interview.

It has been most effective in removing or preventing plaques on smooth surfaces of teeth.

Will Share In Distribution Of Fair Funds

The Youngsville - Warren County Fair and the Warren County 4-H development fund will receive a share of some $884,065 from the Pennsylvania Fair Fund, scheduled to be disbursed to county and local fairs, youth activity groups and statewide organizations, according to an announcement made Monday, by Leland H. Bull, state agriculture secretary.

Bull stated Youngsville - Warren County Fair will receive $5,677.44 from the state fair fund, while the county's 4-H development fund will be awarded $2,000.

Those groups eligible to share in the $884,065, the largest amount disbursed by the state fair fund since its inception in 1963, Bull said are in addition to youth and farm organization groups, those that conduct fairs to advance the aims and objectives of agriculture or agricultural business.

Anticancer Shooter Described

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission described Wednesday development of a promising "injection gun" technique for treating cancer with tiny radioactive projectiles.

In its annual report to Congress, the agency said also that much work remains to be done on the nation's newest nuclear missile warheads before they can be put into production.

The anticancer shooter is one of two experimental methods which appear to have possibilities for attacking malignancies with radioactive by-products of the nation's atomic energy program, the AEC said.

AEC scientists, amplifying on the report's brief reference, told a reporter the gun technique employs tiny, seedlike bits of radioactive chromium wire as cancer-fighting "bullets" that are shot through the skin or implanted at time of surgery.

The commission's over-all report contained a wide-ranging account of developments in the military and peaceful applications of atomic energy.

The AEC picked as the highlight of last year's activities what it termed "the surge toward greater use of nuclear power to meet the nation's electricity needs of the future . . ."

The commission made no reference to the Johnson administration's budget requests for the AEC during fiscal 1969, which for the first time since 1955 propose spending for military activities exceeding that for peaceful purposes.

However, in its discussion of military uses, the report reflected a major surge to perfect and produce new missile warheads, especially those of the Sentinel system which is ticketed for defense against any Red Chinese nuclear missile threat.

Concerning the anticancer technique, the AEC indicated that only a few patients have been treated thus far, but the commission said the results have been "promising enough to deserve more attention."

Wants Check Of Suspected Explosions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Joseph P. Vigorito, D - Pa., called Wednesday for legislation to authorize federal investigation of suspected natural gas explosions.

Vigorito pointed to the explosion in Ingram, Pa., Tuesday in which at least eight persons were killed and more than 20 injured. Gas company workers were investigating reports of a gas line leak at the time of the blast, but the cause has not been determined.

Doubt over the cause of the blast illustrates the need for federal pipeline safety legislation, Vigorito said in a statement.

"If we had been able to immediately send out a team of federal inspectors after the blast we would already be at the root of this explosion," he said.

"This is what is done after an airline or railroad crash and there is no reason why the federal government should not also have jurisdiction to investigate natural gas accidents and to prescribe the necessary remedial action and safety standards."

Two Persons Escape Injury In Accidents

Two persons escaped injury in accidents on LR61034 (Conewango avenue ext.) yesterday morning.

State police trooper Daniel Portzer investigated one mishap at 8:10 a. m. about one mile north of Warren when, he stated, a car operated by Margaret J. Kates, Box 249, Warren, traveling south, hit an icy spot, went out of control, struck an embankment, overturned, skidded on its side and then turned upright on the highway.

Damage to the 1967 Volvo sedan was listed at $750.

At 7:45 a. m. yesterday, also on Conewango avenue extension, six-tenths of a mile north of Warren, Trooper John F. Kulick was called to the scene of the second accident.

According to Kulick, a car driven by Carol Lynn Flood, 6 Crestmont dr., RD 1, Warren, went out of control on icy highway, skidded 60 feet and struck a fence and tree.

Damage to the 1964 Renault was estimated at $1,050.

Need a 'Right' Replacement

It's been said before, but Warren County has been fortunate in having a man such as Bob Peterson as its planner. But, as announced some weeks ago, Peterson is leaving us for a position with more opportunity and a chance for further education.

This leaves us with the task of finding a "right" replacement.

Warren County is in a real stage of development. Tourism is the growing industry, the state is providing us with new and improved highways, and there are hopes for more diversified industry.

With this growth planning and zoning, and the control thereof, become more and more important.

PEARSON & ANDERSON

Dealings Disappointing

WASHINGTON—President Johnson has complained to friends that his dealings with the Kremlin have been disappointing, at times exasperating. He can't get the cooperation he had hoped for, finds it frustrating not to be able to deal directly with the real boss, Leonid Brezhnev, secretary of the Communist party.

At Glassboro, the President found that Kossygin was unable to deviate from the instructions he had received in Moscow. To illustrate, LBJ told the story of a Texas farmer from the hill country who took his ten sons into town to buy new suits.

First he bought a blue serge suit for himself. Then the storekeeper asked the oldest boy what kind of a suit he wanted.

"Blue serge," was the answer.

He asked the second son.

"Blue serge," was the answer.

He asked the third son.

"Blue serge," was the answer.

Anderson

The President continued calling the roll of the ten sons. All echoed their father's words, "blue serge."

That's the way Kossygin's answers were, he said, always the same.

Despite this, Johnson came away from the Glassboro talks confident that the Kremlin was ready to push ahead with a treaty to stop the spread of nuclear weapons and an agreement limiting the production of anti-ballistic missiles. He was disappointed. Negotiations on both broke down.

Then out of the blue this month, the Kremlin casually agreed to a nuclear non-proliferation treaty. This is now a firm pact between the two top nuclear powers, and the President plans to push ratification in the Senate. He has been advised against this by his political friends. They tell him that the hawks and the Soviet critics will block the treaty, especially following the Pueblo incident. However, he feels that stopping the spread of nuclear weapons and cooperation with the Soviet are so important that he is going to make the fight.

Lyndon Johnson is a President who studies the intelligence reports carefully. He takes them upstairs to read in bed, sometimes goes over them until after midnight.

These reports tell of a split inside the Kremlin over cooperation with the United States. It's a hangover from Khrushchev's day when he was considered too pro-American and was finally kicked out.

JAMES RESTON

Law of Compensation

WASHINGTON — It is not easy to find much consolation in the frustrating tumults of the present age, and yet, as Emerson observed long ago, there is a vague law of compensation working in the world which may in the end be useful.

Reston

Never in history have the great nations been so powerful or so impotent as they are today. The spirit of domination is as virulent today as it ever was in the major capitals of the world, but the small states defy it more effectively than ever before. Just when the apocalyptic engines of destruction achieve the power to wipe out the individual, the community, the small state, and even the human race, human courage and determination have somehow managed to achieve some kind of rough balance.

In politics, as in physics, every force now tends to create an equal counter-force. Hanoi cannot impose its will on Saigon and Washington by force of arms. Saigon, even with the help of half a million Americans and their military machines, cannot compel the Viet Cong and North Vietnam to surrender.

The law of compensation works in peculiar ways. The United States and the Soviet Union have the military power to prevail, but the disadvantages of using that power are greater than the advantages. Washington can smash North Vietnam but China would inherit the wreckage. Moscow has the missiles to paralyze our air fields in South Vietnam and blow our aircraft carriers out of the water, but it dare not use them.

President Johnson can give North Korea an ultimatum and demand the release of the U.S.S. Pueblo and its crew by next weekend, but this could open up another war and in any event would not guarantee the liberation of the ship or its men. And fortunately, this limitation on the power of the great nations influences the Soviet Union and Communist China as well as the United States.

China could intervene in Vietnam and Korea and threaten the security of the United States forces in both places, but it knows that we would not allow our forces to be overwhelmed even if we had to use atomic weapons, so Peking holds back.

Moscow has the sophisticated weapons to paralyze our air and sea power in Vietnam, but knows that the cost of sinking an American aircraft carrier and knocking out our air bases there would be greater than the gains.

History has been trying to make this point now for quite a while. Cuba with Soviet missiles which could destroy any city in the United States is intolerable: so the missile crisis was faced by President Kennedy even at the risk of nuclear war.

The Soviet Union also tolerates the defiance of Berlin, which it has the power to smash, but at unacceptable costs. It resents the dissent of Romania and the defiance of Albania, and the menace of China along a 7,000 mile frontier.

What is happening -- and this is the consolation -- is that the major governments are beginning to adapt their actions to the realities of power and geography. They talk tough, which is the respect they pay to the political assumptions and attitudes of the past, but they act prudently, which is the respect they pay to the destructive nuclear power of the present.

What Washington has not done is to recognize that it has achieved its main objectives in Southeast Asia: it has blocked the conquest of South Vietnam by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

If either side presses beyond this point, it will have to use power that will create even more problems than now exist. The power it uses will produce equal power on the other side. Whoever loses the big battle now coming up at the demilitarized zone in Vietnam will call up other resources to keep the battle going, because the prestige of the two great antagonistic systems in the world is now on the line. The law of compensation, therefore, will probably work, because both sides are now too deeply committed to withdraw and submit.

This is the immediate issue. The Johnson administration sees that it is too risky to use all its power to compel a solution in Korea, but it is still trying to do so in Vietnam, and so is the administration in Hanoi. One day both sides will probably realize that there really is a law of compensation that cannot be defied -- that whatever power is applied will be met by the other side -- and when that point is reached, there then may be a sensible negotiation and accommodation.

SYLVIA PORTER

Travel Under What Flag?

Even when scheduling a trip overseas, you can help close our huge tourist gap, I wrote in a recent column, merely by trying to "go on a U. S. airline or steamship and trying to make your reservation through a U.S. agent."

Porter

It was a simple, single sentence -- only one of several suggestions, but it inspired an extraordinary volume of letters. Among them was one letter from Gordon Gilmore, vice president of Trans World Airlines, and another from S. Ralph Cohen, assistant to the president of Scandinavian Airlines System. Both men are friends of mine and also of each other.

Said TWA's Gilmore, after paying my column a hearty compliment: "You hit the nail squarely on the head."

Said SAS's Cohen, after a "more in sorrow than in anger" introduction: "In point of fact, the European airlines bring almost twice as much money into this country as they take out. In 1966 alone, their expenditures in this country were $416 million, as against sales of $213 million. Your plea to Americans not to travel on foreign-flag airlines can only penalize American aircraft workers, American travel agents, American banks and investors, and even American newspapers and magazines."

Since I obviously do not want to penalize any of these groups, I must pursue the question: which of these views is correct? Since you, the American tourist, would obviously be making the choice all on your own, the question you also must pursue is: would you be helping or hurting your country's balance of payments in this emergency by favoring U. S. carriers?

To start with, a fundamental generalization is essential because it holds the key to the whole debate. Specifically, the red ink in our international accounts soared to crisis totals toward the end of 1967. A continuation of this level of deficits would be intolerable, for it would invite qualified foreign holders of dollars to turn them in for our gold to protect themselves against a cheapening of the U. S. dollar in terms of gold. It would signal the undermining, if not the destruction, of the international monetary system which has fueled the free world's post-World War II expansion. We must dry up that red ink and as long as Asia is such a drain, we must seek to plug other leaks. One enormous leak lies in the $2 billion more that U. S. tourists spend abroad than foreign tourists spend here. A quick way to help plug this leak is by paying our dollars to U. S. firms when we do travel abroad. This is the fundamental, now to continue:

The implication of Cohen's statistics is that every $1 you spend with a foreign flagship somehow creates an immediate net inflow of almost $2 to the U. S. This is clearly absurd on the face of it.

What Cohen actually is dramatizing is the benefit the U. S. gets from purchases of U. S. aircraft by foreign airlines. This, though, is a long-range payments benefit, and we are faced with an immediate payments crisis. Gilmore brings up the additional point that "a substantial proportion, TWA estimates over half, of the aircraft purchased by European carriers are for service over routes remote from the U. S. and among whose passengers U. S. citizens are very limited."

In short, U. S. planes are purchased for these routes because the planes are superior to competitive types and for no other reason. Thus, the requirements for the U. S. planes would be only marginally reduced by a shift of some U. S. citizens from foreign to U. S. carriers during the current emergency.

A more reasonable perspective on the immediate impact of choice of flags comes from a 1965 Civil Aeronautics Board survey. According to the CAB's figures, when a U. S. resident buys a $300 round trip ticket to London on a foreign flag carrier, about $100 remains in the U. S. to cover port expenses (fuel, station costs, advertising landing fees, payrolls, etc.). The net deficit to the U. S. is $200. When he flies on a U.S. carrier, about $200 stays here. The net deficit is cut in half to $100.

Any permanent preference for U. S. flagships would be a retreat to economic isolationism which Gilmore finds abhorrent as I or any trade liberal would.

Even now, during the payments emergency, you can choose the flag you wish, without fear of censure. Nearly 60 per cent of transatlantic travel is via foreign flag carriers, incidentally.

But I submit that the safeguarding of the U. S. dollar is the basic goal now.

"It could be much worse, Mr. President . . . The Pueblo could have sunk off Greenland and the North Koreans could have hijacked the H-bombs!"

RUSSELL BAKER

I Hear America Talking

WASHINGTON — American conversations for 1968:

"Oops. Sorry about that."

"Is something the matter, sir?"

"Nothing to be alarmed about, Jimpson. We seem to have spilled one of our H-bombs. As usual it wasn't armed. I'll just call up the doglegs and have them pick it up."

"Funny how they're never armed, isn't it, sir?"

"Good sound idea, though, leaving them unarmed, what with the way we're spilling them around these days on icebergs and tomato patches. Bad for the old Air Force image, you know, if one of them popped off."

"Suppose, one of these days, one of them did turn out to be armed, sir?"

"Forget it, Jimpson, mistakes like that don't happen. Not in the Air Force."

Baker

"Do you believe the government when it says that spy loat wasn't inside North Korea's territorial waters?"

"Of course I believe the government. I mean, if you can't believe the government, who can you believe?"

"That's what I mean, see. I mean, like, well, how can you believe the government when the government knows we've got to believe it whatever it says because it's the government? If I was the government, with all that trust you put in me, I'd be tempted not to tell you everything about, well, like anything very embarrassing."

"I believe the government, man, yes I do. I believe the government. I do believe the government."

"But, like --"

"Man quit trying to shake my faith! A man's got to have something he can believe in even if he can't believe it half the time."

"All right, Dad, just tell me why it is, huh, that if pot is outlawed for being bad for you they don't outlaw cigarettes for being bad for you? Did you ever hear of pot causing cancer? Huh? Explain to me how that makes sense."

"Shut up."

"We're gonna burn this country down, baby."

TOM WICKER

The Federal Mess

NEW YORK — The advisory commission on intergovernmental relations has issued a timely and eloquent warning that the deterioration of living conditions in the great American population centers is threatening their total domination by the national government.

The commission's thesis is chilling in its logic. So paralyzing is the overlap, disarray, inertia, antiquity and poverty of state and local government in America that it cannot begin to cope with the swiftly changing circumstances and demands of the 20th Century city. And as the city therefore spirals downward into blight, disorder and rioting, its residents increasingly demand that the powerful federal government accept responsibility for their security and wellbeing.

Wicker

On the same day this warning was issued, and as if to put an exclamation point after it, the urban coalition -- a group of the most powerful and public-spirited private interests in the United States -- called upon Congress to guarantee a job for everyone able to work but unable to find private employment.

The coalition's appeal echoed statements by President Johnson suggesting that the government would have to provide jobs for those not employed privately. So far, his words have been translated only into a proposal for a $2.1 billion job training program, to be conducted in partnership with business. Unless this shows spectacular results -- and it has not yet even been approved in Congress -- there will be increasing pressure on Washington for the federal government to step in as an "employer of last resort."

This step would not be taken in usurpation of someone else's powers and prerogatives but in simple desperation at the inability of private interests or of state and local government to provide either the energy or the means for reaching the hard-core, urban unemployed.

This process becomes most ominous as it operates in police affairs. Federal troops were needed to restore order, and keep it, in Detroit last summer; they probably would be needed in any city in the U.S. where outbreaks of such violence occurred. At some point, therefore, in the present cycle of outbreak and inadequate response, the reliance of the cities for physical security will fall more heavily upon the federal government than even upon the state-controlled National Guard, much less the hopelessly inadequate and ill-trained police forces of most cities.

So far, the administration's federal crime legislation has wisely concentrated on means of improving local law enforcement -- not merely giving it more muscle but improving the quality of its personnel and the degree of its understanding of the complex problems it faces. The roar of approval that went up in Congress when the President denounced "crime in the streets" in the State of the Union message was striking evidence of how easy it probably would be to get less enlightened "strongarm" legislation to deal with what too many people seem to see as a mere crime wave.

The advisory commission's particular emphasis is on a vital dimension of the urban crisis that has been missing from too many studies. In essence, the commission has asked the truly basic question: whether American government today is organized and equipped to cope with the vast complex kaleidoscopic demands of an age of technology and affluence.

It is not the "federal system" of competing and co-operating national, state and local governments that is being questioned.

It is rather the organization and operation of the institutions and jurisdictions of the federal system "when measured against present and prospective needs and expectations" that are grossly inadequate. The fact is that many of the institutions of American government are outmoded, poorly manned, underfinanced, socially unresponsive and politically exploited. They lie atop one another in an impenetrable tangle of wards, boroughs, districts, townships, cities and counties, within

MASON DENISON

Reduce Or Retain

HARRISBURG — Unquestionably one of the toughest subjects to come before the Constitutional Convention revolves around the question of whether the existing 203-seat House of Representatives should be reduced or retained as is.

There are proponents on both sides of the issue. The arguments offered by both should be of more than passing interest and ultimately of direct concern to residents of the Keystone State -- from the service and representation standpoint.

Few will argue against reduction of the number of members of the House from the present 203 to around 200 but when it drops below this point -- to around 180, as some have suggested -- debate becomes heated.

From the standpoint of "appealing to the public," the idea of reduction in size of almost any governing body undeniably has its alluring side. The Legislature most certainly is no exception.

Basically of course the prime thought behind such reduction revolves around the cost-saving angle plus, it is generally felt, such other attributes as added efficiency, streamlining, simplification, etc.

However this isn't always what happens by any stretch of the imagination. For some reason costs seemingly have a penchant for remaining at the same level -- or as oftentimes is the case, higher.

In fact one devotee of the reduce-the-size-of-the-House cause, inadvertently perhaps, allowed as how a reduction in the number of members would permit what was termed "a more equitable distribution" of existing costs among a smaller sized legislative chamber -- the indication being that there would be no overall savings but simply provision for more funds for fewer members "to provide more efficient services" on the part of individual lawmakers.

All of which may -- or may not -- be true, but in a sense seems to miss the prime point in having a House of Representatives at all.

Over the years the general theory has been that senatorial districts are designed basically as geographical coverage areas, as illustrated by the fact that there are only 50 senatorial districts in the state.

This compares with the 203 districts in the House of Representatives designed to provide the close-to-home representation (obvious by the smallness and more numerous House districts) envisioned by the founding fathers.

In rural upstate areas of the state in particular, as the number of House districts have been reduced over the years, the geographical size of the individual House district generally has been increased.

This is exemplified by the fact that prior to the one-man, one-vote principle enunciated by the U. S. Supreme Court, the minimal House district was a county. The court's decree changed this, striking county lines and decreeing that population alone should be the key factor in determining size of legislative districts.

Upshot was the multi-county district, for example, where a single county district prevailed heretofore, with the result that a lawmaker (in rural spread out districts particularly) who had one county to cover found himself with two or three counties within his traveling bailiwick.

For these lawmakers it has been almost physically impossible to maintain the close-to-home representative relationship previously enjoyed with residents of the district, thanks to the enlarged geographic size of his new area.

It is generally agreed that the situation would be aggravated -- for rural lawmakers -- with any drastically reduced House membership as now proposed. For the big city lawmakers the change is regarded as minimal, which is perhaps one reason why support for reduction in the number has come from these areas.

states that are themselves primarily historical accidents without real economic, social or sometimes even geographical coherence.

The urban coalition is certainly on sound ground in urging immediate emergency action to cope with the hardcore unemployed. For the longer run, however, only a general system reorganized and reinvigorated to cope with the 20th Century, and perhaps even the beginning of the 21st, is likely to preserve that "political diversity" which the advisory commission rightly sees as the guarantor of individual freedom.

'Two Months On Capitol Hill'

By William W. Allen, Assemblyman

As mentioned in my "One month on Capitol Hill" report, it was spent in day and night sessions trying and finally succeeding in clearing up the revenue bills that had remained inactive for so many months.

Even though we have been in session only four days of the first week of January, I feel it to be my duty as your representative to spend additional time in Harrisburg on various problems that have arisen and checking on the availability of materials and services that could prove beneficial to our district in the future.

The year of 1968 could very well be a year of action and changes in the 65th Assembly District.

With the passage of Senate Bill No. 509, Warren should finally realize the long awaited recreation and swimming pool facilities.

Tionesta moved another step closer to realization of its plans for the fresh running water swimming and beach along with other athletic, camping and picnic facilities by a grant of $7,250.00, Project 70 Fund, early in January.

Sheffield is making a commendable effort to establish a museum of railroading and lumbering industries of bygone years in the railroad station in that village. This along with the Johnny Apple Seed Festival should make quite a tourist attraction in that area.

After many years of inactivity the 65th District of Forest and Warren counties are now faring much better in the state road program.

In Forest County Route 899 from Marienville to Clarington is much improved and is open to traffic. Route 68 north of Pigeon is scheduled for improvement in the near future. Route 666 from Endeavor to Barnes is being improved in sections and we hope in its entirety in the near future.

In Warren County the Youngsville by-pass will be completed in early fall of 1968. The Warren by-pass is scheduled to be completed in 1972. The section of Route 62 north of Warren to Russell 6.8 miles should be completed in the fall of 1969.

Letting of the contract of Route 59 to Kinzua Dam from Route 6 is scheduled for 1972. Route 957 west of Lottsville is scheduled for the near future. Warren-Scandia Road should be greatly improved in 1968 to accommodate cars, trailers, etc.

This represents expenditures in excess of twelve million dollars.

I spent several hours with Vincent J. McCool, higher education advisor of the Bureau of State Colleges and Universities, investigating along with other projects the possibility of establishing additional education facilities in our district namely a two year program of nurses training. Also, I now have applications for scholarships and student loans. If interested in either or both please contact me.

I have been appointed to the following standing committees: Game and Fisheries; Liquor Control; Military and Veterans Affairs; Public Utilities; Elections and Apportionments (when a vacancy occurs).

My office space is on the main floor of the Capitol Building, Room No. 147. Phone — AC 717-787-5959.

I may be reached at these other phones: House Chambers (when in session) AC 717-787-6230; Executive House Apartment No. 703 AC 717-234-9754; home in Tidoute AC 814-484-3543. If I, as your assemblyman, may be of assistance in any way feel free to contact me at the above numbers.

On Nov. 16-19, 1967 the World Congress of Free Ukrainians, held in New York City and attended by 1,003 delegates from 17 countries, condemned Communist Russia's enslavement of Ukraine, and appealed to the free world for help and assistance to the Ukrainian people in their struggle for freedom and national independence.

Both the U.S. Congress and the President of the United States have expressed their concern over the captive non-Russian nations in the USSR by enacting the "Captive Nations Week Resolution" in July, 1959.

State Aims to Rid Itself Of '10 Most Unwanted Drivers'

You may not be on the F.B.I.'s list of the "Ten Most Wanted" criminals, but you can still make Pennsylvania's list of the "Ten Most Unwanted" drivers.

Harry H. Brainerd, commissioner of traffic safety, today called on state motorists to review their driving habits and make any necessary adjustments in order that they won't fall into any category which may qualify them for inclusion on the "unwanted drivers" list.

Commissioner Brainerd, pointing to unsafe practices that make some drivers safety hazards for other motorists and themselves, listed the following ten categories to avoid:

1. The free wheeling lane changer — a driver who swings back and forth, usually without proper signals.
2. The tail-gater — an operator who follows the car ahead too closely.
3. The gap-closer — a driver you see in the rear view mirror driving too fast, and who is likely to misjudge passing speed and distance.
4. The brake rider — an operator who rides his brakes, creating uncertainty in the minds of other drivers as to what he intends to do.
5. The "signal jumper" — a driver who guns his engine to get off to a fast start as the signal is changing or speeds through an intersection just as the signal turns red.

6. The timid soul — an operator who creeps into the acceleration lane on expressway or turnpike, sometimes stops and then surges into the traffic flow.

7. The oncoming high speed driver — an operator who all too often is responsible for head-on collisions.

8. The curve "slower" — a driver who slows down in a curve instead of slowing down before he enters it.

9. The "Twilight Zone" driver — an operator who drives in early darkness without lights.

10. The highbeam headlight driver — an operator who refuses to dim his headlights for oncoming traffic, blinding approaching motorists.

"While there are undoubtedly many other categories that could be added," Brainerd said, "Pennsylvania could rid itself of its 'Ten Most Unwanted' drivers if each individual motorist will not make the effort to qualify for any category on the list."

FHA Credit Programs Help 107 Area Families

Credit programs of the U. S. Farmers Home Administration helped more than 107 families in Erie and Warren counties improve their homes, family farms and communities during 1967, Supervisor Robert J. Meneely of the agency's county office in Corry, Pennsylvania, said today.

Farmers Home Administration loans and grants in the county totaled $940,000 in 1967, a new record. Gains were especially noteworthy in the Rural Housing Loan Program. 49 rural families were able to obtain adequate and safe housing during 1967. Housing credit in Pennsylvania has grown from the level of $503,460 in 1960 to $4,425,000 in 1967.

Meneely reported that the Farmers Home Administration, which supplements all other credit available to rural people, has added $1,025,800 to the counties' resources with loans and grants the past two years through a range of programs increased under the leadership of President Johnson.

With the turnover of funds invested by borrower families, associations and communities, the agency's work is estimated to have had an $11,375,000 impact on the counties' economy during 1966 and 1967.

Meneely said that $170,000 of the 1967 lending total through his office was accounted for by Farmers Home Administration insurance of loans funded by private lenders.

Family farmers who lacked other sources of credit turned to the Farmers Home Administration for $318,000 in loans to secure farm ownership and improve their farms and $296,500 in loans for operating purposes during 1967.

"Many of the 40 farm families served by FHA might have been forced off the land except for this last-resort source of financing," Meneely said.

Meneely reported that community improvement in Erie County has been spurred by a $19,500 Farmers Home Administration grant for a comprehensive water and sewer plan for rural areas to the Warren County Planning Commission.

Meneely also reported that the Erie County Technical Action Panel, of which he serves as chairman, is planning action to help local rural groups develop various projects for community betterment.

The TAP is a council of public agencies that help find sources of technical, financial and other assistance needed to carry out projects for community betterment.

Letters To The Editor

Editor Warren Times-Mirror and Observer Box 88 Warren, Pennsylvania Dear Sir:

Your page one story Monday, Jan. 29, dealing with the apparent solution of a series of thefts in this area testifies to the consistently fine performance of the Warren Police Department.

There is, however, an aspect of the case's presentation to the public which I find distressing.

The thefts, according to your story, took place over a two-month period; yet in that time, no report of them appeared in the Times-Mirror and Observer. Suddenly the case was solved and the reader discovered someone had been stealing auto parts from garages all over town. Along with the story was a photograph of the stolen equipment chastely lined up along the wall of the police station. It was a very dramatic technique, but not altogether satisfying.

Since the thefts were not made known when they occurred, it is obvious someone was suppressing the news, either yourself or the police. Since the thefts were not reported by any other news media either, the only logical conclusion is that the information was withheld by the police.

There are times when police are justified in withholding information dealing with the fact that a crime has been committed, specifically when publicity of a crime would hinder police in a complete and thorough investigation. This would occur only when a criminal might feasibly believe that his felonious acts were going undetected.

This could not possibly be true with the case in point. No one stealing all four tires and a back seat from cars could consider that the owners would not discover the theft and report it to the law enforcement agencies. A simple report of the fact that a theft had occurred would not have told the thief more than he knew already, namely that his action had been detected. It would not have been necessary for the police to disclose evidence or details of their investigation which might have given the thief an edge on avoiding apprehension. Therefore, the withholding of the fact that the thefts occurred can only be termed indiscriminate and unjustified.

More distressing than the fact that information was withheld was the theatrical flair with which the facts were finally divulged. A special phone call was made to a reporter; the photographer was requested, perhaps invited, to take a picture of the loot neatly arranged. The entire procedure was more in the character of a company announcing a new product or selecting a vice president than in the matter of fact manner we should expect from a law enforcement agency.

This is not the first time, to my recollection, that criminal investigations by the Warren police have been made public in this way. A continued suppression of the facts when crimes are committed and the use of Madison Avenue techniques to publicize completed investigations may give your readers the ridiculous impression that Warren is a town where no crimes are committed and they are all ingeniously solved. The police department's record of successful investigation needs no padding. It does not seem necessary that they assume a preposterous role better suited to a Sherlock Holmes mystery.

Sincerely, Walter Erbland

January, 1968 January marked the 50th Anniversary of the proclamation of Independence of the Ukrainian National Republic, and the 49th Anniversary of the Act of Union, whereby all Ukrainian ethnic lands were united into one independent and sovereign state of the Ukrainian nation. The independence of Ukraine was proclaimed in Kiev, the capital of Ukraine, on January 22, 1918, and the Act of Union took place a year later, on January 22, 1919, also in Kiev.

The young Ukrainian democratic republic was immediately recognized by a number of foreign governments, including that of Soviet Russia. The latter, however, almost simultaneously with recognition, declared war and began a large-scale invasion of Ukraine. For almost three years the Ukrainian people waged a gallant struggle in defense of their country, alone and unaided. Eventually, in 1920 Ukraine succumbed to the superior forces of Communist Russia and became part of the Russian communist empire, known as the USSR.

The freedom-loving people of Ukraine have not accepted Soviet Russian domination and have been fighting for the reestablishment of their independence by all means accessible to them for the 47 years.

During World War II the Ukrainian people organized a powerful underground resistance movement, known as the Ukrainian Insurgent Army (UPA), which fought not only against the Nazi regime, but against the Soviet security troops as well. Stalin and Khrushchev unleashed bloody persecution and reprisals against the Ukrainian people in the late 1940's and it was Khrushchev himself who stated at the 20th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union in February, 1956, that "Stalin had wanted to deport all Ukrainians, but there were too many of them and there was no place to which they could be deported."

Relentless and harsh persecution of Ukrainians continued after the death of Stalin, and it continues now after the ouster of Khrushchev from the top leadership in the Kremlin, inasmuch as the Brezhnev-Kosygin duumvirate is bent on keeping the Soviet Russian empire intact and unified.

Briefly, the Kremlin rule in Ukraine can be described as follows:

—Exploitation of Ukraine's economic resources for the benefit of Moscow and its imperialistic ventures in Asia, Africa and Latin America;

—Systematic deportation of Ukrainians to Central Asia, replacing them with Russian settlers for the purpose of augmenting the Russian element in Ukraine;

—Arrests and trials of "Ukrainian bourgeois nationalists," who, in fact, are Ukrainian patriots fighting for freedom of their country;

—Terror and assassination of Ukrainian leaders outside Ukraine, as demonstrated by the assassination of Dr. Lev R. Rebet, a noted Ukrainian writer, and Stepan Bandera, head of the Organization of Ukrainian Nationalists (OUN), both of whom were slain by KGB agent Bohdan Stashynsky in Munich, in 1957 and 1959, respectively;

—Enforced Russification, aiming at the cultural and linguistic genocide of the Ukrainian people. Recently, a number of Ukrainian writers and literary critics were arrested and sentenced by the communist courts in Ukraine, most notable among them being Ivan Sytlichny and Ivan Dziuba, who have been accused of writing anti-Soviet works and of smuggling to the West anti-Russian work of another Ukrainian poet. Some 70 Ukrainian writers, poets, literary critics, includ-

The Golden Sticker - Again

For the past five years I have been highly critical of the provisions of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act which created the Golden Eagle program. Basically, I have felt right along that it was a good law, but that it was being very poorly administered. And while it irked me somewhat to see the users of park and recreational facilities forced to pay a fee on the federal areas while Congress at the same time was handing out subsidies to small businesses, farmers, transportation users on both land and water, and, in fact, almost every segment of industry, I couldn't help but feel that the law had a purpose.

Now I am beginning to wonder. Not because of the basic principles of the act nor the fact that five years of improper functioning has weakened its worth, but because of the manner in which Congress has been using it to deny public demands for much needed recreational facilities.

Other conservation-minded persons who are wondering too include Thomas L. Kimball, executive director of the National Wildlife Federation. Writing in Conservation News, Kimball says, "When the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act was passed by the 88th Congress, it was labeled by many people as a great conservation victory ranking with such notable accomplishments as the Wilderness Preservation Act or the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. After five years of operating experience, however, it becomes increasingly evident that the creation of the Land and Water Conservation Fund was more a millstone around the neck of progressive Conservation than it has been a milestone of conservation achievement."

How could this be? Simply by checking the actions of Congress one can come to realize that this benevolent act has been turned to the purpose of defeating both our goals and needs in meeting the recreational needs of our people. Kimball does an excellent job of bringing this fact to light. Further along in his article, he says, "Until this year there have been hopeful signs that more consideration of aesthetic values was being given in the planning of our country's water and land development projects. For the last two years, however, appropriations of money to implement Congressional authorizations has been woefully inadequate. In 1967, the Congress passed no important legislation relating to park and recreation areas."

"One of the most noteworthy reasons given for such inaction was the declaration that Congressional and administration leaders point to the Land and Water Conservation Fund, which was inadequate from the beginning and not intended as an outdoor recreation bank from which all federal and state projects would be funded, as an excuse for their inaction."

"The Congressional record will show that, when the Land and Water Conservation Fund was passed, most of the national conservation organizations favored its enactment but not as a delimiting fund. Nonetheless, Congressional committees and the Bureau of the Budget have required that all park and outdoor recreation projects, programs, and authorizations be financed from this source under a 'full funding' concept and, to date, there has been no challenge from the general public to this designation."

"The chairman of one of the more important committees in Congress has stated openly that his committee is not in any hurry to consider any new conservation programs until Congressional appropriations committees adequately finance those previously authorized through the Land and Water Conservation Fund."

In further checking the Congressional record, as Kimball suggests, it is easy to determine that Congress can be proud of its conservation record over the past six years. On almost every front they have responded to public demand for more open green spaces, park, monument, and recreation areas, as well as scenic areas by coming through with a continual flow of new authorizations. Authorizations intended to meet the demands of a mobile, leisure seeking population whose affluence allowed them to appreciate the beauties of nature and make greater use of the recreational potential our nature-related resources provide.

Yet within the ranks of Congress are those who are using the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act as a means of denying the public the benefits the full membership of Congress has agreed they should have.

Is it any wonder, then, that under present circumstances the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act constitutes more of a threat than a promise to the future of recreation? That it is truly a millstone around the neck of conservation achievement? Certainly not.

FORFEIT SPELLS DIFFERENCE

Knight Grapplers Nipped By Falconer Team, 24-22

LANDER — The Eisenhower Knights suffered a heart-breaking 24-22 defeat from Falconer here last night as the Ike matmen forfeited the heavyweight match, giving the Falcons the winning points.

The matches were evenly split six-six, with the Knights netting two pins and four decisions while the Falcons collected two pins, three decisions and their "gift" forfeit, to net the victory.

In the opening match, Ralph Spicer of Eisenhower was pressed to the mats by Brian Knapp with 1:05 left in the final stanza, giving the Falcons an early lead. Owen Williams (103) then proceeded to tie the score at 5-5 as the Knight grappler turned Jerry Yachetta on his back in a quick 1:31.

The Falcons then moved six points ahead before allowing the Knights to score again as they netted decisions at 11-2 and 12-0. Steve Knapp took an easy 9-2 judgment over Gary Gage at 11-2 to move Falconer up in front, 8-5. Tom Newman posted a 5-4 decision over Paul Cathcart of Eisenhower to move the Falcons comfortably ahead, 11-5.

Pete Black posted a 7-2 judgment over Dick McIntyre at 12-7 to put the Knights back in the running as they trailed 11-8. Another decision was awarded the Falcons at 13-3 as Gary Dalrymple suffered a 7-3 ruling to Paul Crawford.

The 138 match between Andy Bosko and Al Whitmore was scoreless going into the final stanza, when, with less than a minute to go, Bosko was awarded a penalty point to post the victory, 1-0.

The second Falconer pin of the evening came at 14-5 as Mike Newman squeezed Dave Burnett to the mats in the first period in 1:26. Bob Hagberg continued to close the gap in the Falconer lead as he collected a takedown in the first period and a reversal in the second to edge Dick Miller, 4-2.

The fastest pin of the evening came at 16-5 when Harry Critzer whirled Steve Stenstrom around and pressured the Falconer to the mats in 1:04, tying the match at 13-13.

Tim Martin then delighted the Ike fans as he posted a 3-2 decision over Doug Whitmore at 18-0. Martin collected an escape and a takedown in the second stanza, to Whitmore's predicament, moving Ike out in front for the first time, 22-19.

Despite the Ike lead, it was not enough as Sam Piazza of Falconer merely walked to the middle of the mats to have his hand raised, earning the victory for the Falcons, 24-22.

The Knights now carry an overall 6-4 grappling slate with a .500 mark in the Southern Tier at 4-4. The Knights travel to Westfield Friday night to meet the Wolverines in a league contest. In the jayvee match last night, the Falcons were also victorious with a 29-21 triumph over Ike.

Individual results of last night's varsity match were as follows:

JAMESTOWN, N. Y. — Warren Area High School's basketball team never recovered from a 12-point first quarter deficit to Jamestown High here last night and fell to the Red Raiders, 89-72, in a free-wheeling, high-scoring independent contest.

Led by big Don Johnston and Don Schmonsky, the Raiders dominated the Dragons in the opening stanza, then held them at range for the rest of the game.

Johnston, a 6-7 junior, controlled the boards for the New Yorkers throughout most of the tilt and scored a game-high 28 points. Schmonsky, another Raider veteran, was right behind at 24.

For Warren, Dan Krumm turned in one of his best offensive efforts of the season with 20 points, but the rest of the starting five sagged badly.

BRADFORD — The Warren-Edinboro Campus basketball team evened its season record at 4-4 here last night with an 86-72 triumph over the Pitt Campus of Bradford.

Paul Johnston turned in another fantastic scoring performance, netting 17 from the floor and four from the free throw line for a total of 38 points, and got help from Dave Bucka, who tallied 24.

The debut of Ken McNeil, a former Kane High athlete, with the Warren team was a success and a factor in the victory. McNeil scored only eight points, but starred in the role of playmaker.

Warren held a 43-38 edge at intermission, then outscored the Bradford cagers in the second half, 43 to 34, to win handsily.

The Bandsmen found the range for a total of 34 field goals to 24 for Bradford, who held an edge at the foul line, converting 24 of 39 to 18 of 25 for Warren.

Bradford had five players in double figures, topped by Rich Ferreri with 24.

Warren plays again on Saturday, traveling to Oil City to meet the Venango Campus team of Clarion State College.

Dragon in double figures with ten, but his defensive board work in the last three periods kept the Blue and White in contention.

The Dragons also received much-needed help from the bench. Rick Nasman, Mike Hackett and Steve Tundel all took turns sparking a sputtering Warren attack.

Johnston's rebounding played a big part in the Raider victory. He allowed the Dragons only one shot during the first period as Jamestown pounded out an insurmountable lead. His play also cost Warren the services of Randy Jones, who fouled out late in the second period trying to stop the tall Raider. Ed O'Neil also left via the foul route, but it was early in the fourth quarter when the final result was virtually decided.

Warren managed to stay close to the Raiders in second and third period scoring, and edged them in the final stanza 27 points to 26, but were never closer than 12 points in the second half and Jamestown led by as many as 20 late in the game.

The Dragons led 7-5 during the early going, but then went cold and, with Johnston pulling down the rebounds, were limited to one shot at the basket.

Moving well against Warren's man-to-man defense, which had been so effective last week against Oil City, the Raiders slowly pulled ahead and led by 12 at the end of the first period, 24-12.

The Dragons dropped into a zone in the second stanza and Ed O'Neil started getting position on Johnston under the boards, but the Raiders increased their advantage to 19 points when Jones drew his fifth foul with less than a minute left before intermission.

Hackett replaced Jones and hit two quick field goals, one right at the buzzer, to leave the Dragons trailing by 15 points, 45-30, as they entered the locker room.

Tundel started the second half for the Blue and White and, along with Ed O'Neil and Krumm, sparked the Dragons to within 13 points midway through the third period, 52-39.

The Raiders took advantage of some rough play by the Dragons, however, to march to the foul line to make nine of ten free throws in the next three minutes and thirty seconds to maintain a 63-45 edge heading into the final period.

Nasman took his turn stirring the Dragons to life early in the fourth quarter, but when Ed O'Neil went to the bench on his fifth foul with less than a minute gone Johnston and the Raiders had things pretty much sewed up.

The final seven minutes of play was fast and furious, both coaches emptied their benches, and Jamestown had no trouble holding on to the victory.

The Raiders out-gunned Warren from the floor, 32 to 27, and converted 25 of 36 free throws. The Dragons took 25 shots from the foul stripe and sank 18.

Warren's junior varsity saved a complete disaster by whipping the Little Raiders, 73-49, in the preliminary contest.

Now 5-10, the Dragons swing back into Section II action tomorrow night by hosting the Franklin Knights.

Bona Holds Off Villanova Rally

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bob Lanier, 6-foot-5 sophomore, saved fifth-ranked St. Bonaventure's unbeaten basketball record Wednesday night with a pair of clutch baskets that beat Villanova 66-62.

The Bonnies gained their 16th straight victory and snapped Villanova's 9-game string after blowing a nine-point lead in the second half.

Villanova (10-6) surged ahead 59-58 with 4:22 remaining on an 18-foot jump shot by Bobby Melchionni. The 265-pound Lanier, who grabbed 18 rebounds and scored 22 points, rebounded on a 5-foot shot to give St. Bonaventure a 60-59 lead.

Lanier then blocked a Villanova shot and raced down court to score again with 2:19 left. Seconds later, the giant center snuffed another Villanova shot and started a fast break which wound up with a field goal by Bill Butler to wrap up the game.

Pair Tied in First Round Hope Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Bob Rosburg and Bill Collins, the old guys of golf, were in front after the first round of the $125,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic Wednesday, each firing a five-under-par 67 to lead a general assault on par.

Rosburg, 41, whose last tournament victory was in the Bing Crosby in 1961, said he couldn't quite remember when he led a tournament race since then.

Collins, 39, playing out of Purchase, N.Y., shot 34-33—67 and Rosburg reversed the nine-hole scores as both played the Indian Wells Country Club.

Four courses in play—Indian Wells, Bermuda Dunes, El dorado and La Quinta—each has par 36-36—72 and measure from 6,711 yards to 6,910.

The day was perfect—sunny, crisp in the morning and warm in the afternoon—as the 136 pros and their army of amateur partners swung away in the first 18 of the 90-hole tournament.

Billy Casper, winner of the Los Angeles Open last Sunday, played La Quinta in 33-37—70, and Arnold Palmer had 37-35—72 at the same club.

One stroke behind Rosburg and Collins was Lee Trevino, the 28-year-old Rookie of the Year in 1968, from Horizon City, Tex. Trevino, also at Indian Wells, carded 35-33—68.

Big E Will Not Play In Olympics

NEW YORK (AP) — Elvin Hayes, the Big E of Houston's top-ranked Cougars, said Wednesday he would bypass playing for the U.S. Olympic team next October in order to concentrate on professional basketball.

"It would be an honor to play in the Olympics. But I've always wanted to play pro basketball, and I wouldn't want to lose any time getting ready for it," said the 6-8, 235-pound All-American.

Hayes, a senior, is likely top choice in both the National Basketball Association and American association drafts.

U.S. Squad Totals 113 At Grenoble

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States has entered a team of 113 athletes, 23 of them women, in the Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France, starting next Tuesday.

The U.S. Olympic Committee said Wednesday that it has entered a maximum number of entries in each of the seven sports on the program with the exception of the women's Nordic events.

The United States has no entries at all for the three women's cross country ski races, dominated by the Russians and the Scandinavians.

Among those seeking another medal are Terry McDermott of Birmingham, Mich., the upset winner of the 500-meter speed skating championship, and Alpine skiers Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt., and Jim Heuga, Squaw Valley, Calif., second and third, respectively in the slalom at Innsbruck, Austria, four years ago.

Peggy Fleming of Colorado Springs, Colo., the only reigning world champion on the American team, is the favorite to win the women's figure skating title.

Winter Olympic Gal Athletes Have Sex Tests

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Girls for the Winter Olympics arrived in France Wednesday — and immediately were asked to lick a little bit of paper.

Object of the exercise: to decide whether they are girls or men.

An official of the International Olympic Committee said the sex of athletes would be determined by saliva tests.

"Each girl is required to lick the paper," the official said, "then the paper is sent to a laboratory and the result will be known 36 hours later."

The IOC decided to introduce the sex test for the first time in the Olympics in Grenoble to stop gossip.

An official of the IOC said that the results of the tests would be made known only to the doctor of the team involved.

Each saliva test will be numbered so that nobody—apart from the doctors—knows to whom it refers.

Into the Marketplace

BY ROBERT LIPSYTE

(c) N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The professional football player draft, the commodity futures market of sports, began in 1936 as a wily-nilly curb exchange. Franchise owners crowded into Bert Bell's hotel room, shucked their jackets, and cleared sitting room on beds and bureaus. Bottles circulated, solemn oaths of league solidarity were taken, and the college stars were distributed. Within 10 years, the league has survived an attempt by Detroit to steal Bulldog Turner from Chicago, and Bell, the Philadelphia owner, was elected National League president. Although the wearing of socks was mandatory in league games by 1945, there was still fun to be had: oldtimers remember the late 40's when Jimmy Conzelman, coach of the Chicago Cardinals, played the piano for George Preston Marshall, the Washington Redskins owner, who sang to pass the hours while Pittsburgh and Boston and Brooklyn made up their minds. It was not really big time however. Legend has it that when the New York Giants drafted Frank Gifford in 1952, the University of Southern California running back thought he had been tapped for baseball. Gifford denies the legend, but admits he didn't know who the Giants' coach was, or too much more than that they were pretty far east.

In the 1960's there were some boomer years when fresh American Football League money looked as green as many collegians as old National Football League money. The intrigue was incredible, the screams of linebackers looked in rooms with champagne fountains and entire chorus lines shattered a nation's calm. Clubs bid and outbid, and in 1963 a patch of swamp in New York's Borough of Queens, Flushing Meadow, became as famous for Joe Namath, the $400,000 quarterback, as for the World's Fair. But Namath was a winner, and so was the American League: In 1966 the leagues merged, and created, among other expediences, a common draft of players, a two-day beef exchange that critics believe is somewhat more libertarian than outright slavery, but somewhat more restrictive than indentured servitude.

Another draft started Tuesday, in a haze of cigar smoke and smoldering telephone lines as the latest pack of college boys was cut, shuffled and dealt. The event began at 10:01 a.m. when Pete Rozelle, the commissioner, stood on a platform loaded with green truckboards and microphones and gave Minnesota, holder through a trade of the first draft pick, 15 minutes to name a name. Minnesota, prepared for months, needed only three minutes to instruct its representative at the Belmont Plaza Hotel in Manhattan to write Roy Yary on a white index card and pass it up to Rozelle. The network's needed a bit longer to ready their microphones and since they ultimately produce such scenes no one snarled at them for holding up trading.

Seated in front of Rozelle were perhaps 35 men at 26 tables. Each table was draped in green cloth and held at least one telephone connecting the representative—usually a scout or a friend of the owner—with the club's management and coaching staff. The first two rounds of the draft were almost routine. Each club had 15 minutes to make up its collective mind on the basis of shared, computerized scouting reports. The next 15 rounds, with five-minute deadlines were tougher as teams reached for sleepers and fillers and warm bodies. The men in New York kept the lines open into the night, repeating the selections into the phone as they were announced in Manhattan, playing dummy hands and wondering what wheeler-dealing was going on over telephone lines between the various managements.

Rozelle, whose pale blue eyes never flickered as his Bahama-browned face offered slight smiles, or vowed during a break that the system prevented anarchy, chaos, the destruction of weak teams and the oppression of the common player. Without the draft—to which a player apparently has no alternative if he wants to play in the major leagues—all athletes would join "warm weather glamor teams and the very rich teams," says Rozelle. As he and others have convinced Congress, "Sport is unique and must have certain unique survival measures." At the heart of Rozelle's brief is the "interdependency" of seemingly competitive organizations: the great years of the Giants awoke television and advertising to the possibilities of the entire football industry, and helped bring prosperity to all. A sick franchise affects all clubs, says Rozelle, and the healthy competitive balance of the teams would be lost if players could deal for themselves.

HAMMOND, WARREN, HINES, SCHOEN PICKED

Most Top Stars Already Gone in Pro Grid Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterbacks Kim Hammond of Florida State and Dewey Warren of Tennessee, sprinter Jim Hines of Texas Southern and All-American defensive back Tom Schoen of Notre Dame were among the top collegians picked in the closing day of the combined American and National Football League drafts.

Thad Boasts He'll Stop Quarry in 4

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Thad Spencer, who's not known as a puncher despite 13 kayos in 37 fights, is talking of a knockout on the eve of his big fight with Jerry Quarry.

Spencer and Quarry are scheduled for 12 rounds Saturday afternoon in a semifinal fight in the elimination series to pick a successor to Cassius Clay, whom the World Boxing Association dethroned as heavyweight champion.

The winner will meet Jimmy Ellis, winner of the other semifinal, for the WBA crown in March or April. Ellis outpointed Oscar Bonavena to reach the final.

Quarry, a 193-pound Los Angeles youngster of 22, was quoted by a sports writer as having sounded off, "I'll cut Spencer in two."

Retorted Spencer, a San Francisco of 24 and about 202 pounds, "If Jerry will apologize, I'll forgive him and let him stay around for a while—maybe four rounds."

Quarry has 14 kayos among his 25 victories. He's lost only once, to Eddie Machen, and drawn four.

Bengals' Draft Choice in Jail

CINCINNATI (AP) — Paul Brown, coach and general manager of the Cincinnati Bengals of the American Football League, knew Jesse Phillips was in prison when he drafted Phillips in the pro football draft of college players.

Phillips was a fourth-round choice of the Bengals Tuesday. A spokesman for Brown said Phillips, a former defensive halfback for Michigan State, is serving a 15 months to 14 years term on a charge of check forgery.

Brown was tied up Wednesday with continuation of the draft but Al Heim, publicity director for the Bengals, said, "Paul knew about it but he knew Phillips is a good football player and felt he had just made a mistake. There is no question as to his ability as a player."

Although most of the cream had been skimmed off the top Tuesday when the 26 pro clubs completed five rounds of selections, some still remained for the later rounds.

The teams were selecting a total of 462 players, including extra picks for Cincinnati, the new AFL team, during the 17 rounds.

Hammond, who threw 15 touchdown passes for Florida State, went to the Miami Dolphins of the AFL in the sixth round, using a draft right acquired from Denver in an earlier trade.

Warren, out of action because of injuries during much of the Tennessee season, was a sixth-round pick of the Cincinnati Bengals who had acquired quarter back John Stofa from Miami in a recent deal.

The Miami club also grabbed Hines, the sprinter whose 9.1 seconds for 100 yards tied the world record last year. Hines is a flanker back with Texas Southern.

Schoen, Notre Dame's 5-foot-11, 178-pound defensive back and daring punt return man who was converted from a quarter back, was an eighth-round pick by the Cleveland Browns.

Cincinnati, given special consideration as the latest expansion team, had 45 selections but traded a few of them away. Owner Coach Paul Brown had nine picks in the sixth round in which he had all the other AFL selections, except Miami's. The Bengals drafted first and last in each round, except the first, but spun off some of the rights in trades.

Ron VanderKelen, the one-time Rose Bowl hero from Wisconsin who has served time as a backup man with the Minnesota Vikings, was traded off to the Atlanta Falcons in return for a seventh-round pick.

Bethlehem Steel's Profits Sag 23 Per Cent for 1967

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Bethlehem Steel Corp.'s profits for 1967 sagged 23 per cent despite a fourth quarter in which earnings increased by the same margin.

Bethlehem, the nation's No. 2 steelmaker, reported Wednesday a net income of $130,448,000 or $2.84 a share, trailing 1966's figures of $170,933,000 or $3.72 a share.

Sales for the year and also the quarter also were off. Last year Bethlehem reported sales of $2,594 billion, with $651 million in the last three months. This compared with $2,669 billion and $654 million in 1966.

Third quarter earnings for the year brightened, however, as the company reported profits of $41,246,000 or 90 cents a share. This compared to $33,335,000 and 73 cents a share for the last three months of 1966.

Bethlehem increased the amount it put back in the form of capital expenditures. In 1967 it spent $352,644,000, compared with $278,156,000 for the previous year.

Both production of raw steel and shipment of steel products also declined in 1967. Production then amounted to 20,525,000 raw tons and shipments were 13,056,000 tons. In 1966 the comparative figures were 21,275,000 and 13,849,000 tons.

But little Wheeling Steel bucked the trend of the giants and reported an upward swing for 1967, including the firm's first quarter in the black since early 1965.

Wheeling still lost $10.7 million for 1967, compared to a $15.8 loss the previous year.

It reported a profit of $710,000 for the last quarter of 1967.

In a statement, Edmund F. Martin, Bethlehem's chairman and chief executive officer said, "whether or not 1968 is a good year for the American Steel industry depends on several related factors—the demand for steel, the outcome of labor contract negotiations and the percentage of the market taken by imported steel."

He said attempts to set up procedures to avert the threat of a strike when the present contract expires next August have failed and "consequently the industry is again being subjected to inventory buildups by customers that could adversely affect operations in 1968."

Longhair Rebels Dwindle

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — The "longhair" rebels at Brien McMahon High School dwindled in number Wednesday as their suspensions moved to the court stage.

An order for a show-cause hearing was obtained against the Norwalk school system by the Fairfield County chapter of the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union.

And the local chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) moved in to defend one of the some 50 pupils who were suspended Monday for refusing to heed a rule on hair length.

A spokesman for the CORE chapter said one of the pupils was a Negro who was suspended for having "bushy hair" and that this amounts to "an attack on Afro-American culture" and was "an aspect of white racism."

By Wednesday 23 or 24 of the "longhairs"—the number varying from different school authorities—were still on suspension. The others got haircuts and returned to school.

Some pupils continued their picketing tactics at the school

Wednesday in protest of the suspensions.

The hearing for the school system to show why the suspended pupils should not be immediately reinstated was set for next Monday at 2 p.m. in Common Pleas Court at Bridgeport.

McMahon Principal Luther A. Howard made an inspection in all classrooms Monday—the deadline for complying with a rule to have hair cut above the ears, eyes and collars—and suspended the violators.

Wallace Plans to Stump For Votes in Pennsylvania

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Gov. George Wallace announced Wednesday that Pennsylvania will be the next target area of his drive to obtain a position on state presidential ballots.

Wallace, who dedicated more than a month last year to a successful effort to get his American Independent Party on the California ballot, announced through his campaign headquarters here that he would probably make at least two personal appearances in Pennsylvania during the drive. He did not say where.

Must Tell Customers Cost of Credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House wrote sweeping provisions Wednesday into a bill requiring practically all lenders and sellers to tell customers the cost of credit—interest and other charges—in terms of annual percentage.

The House is expected to pass the measure Thursday in a substantially broader form than approved by the Senate last year.

Specifically, the annual percentage requirements cover these categories exempted by the Senate:

To get on the Pennsylvania ballot, Wallace will need to obtain the signatures of 10,551 voters on a petition, the announcement said.

It added that State Sen. W. G. McCauley of Autauga County, Ala., is in Pennsylvania now, setting up three meetings to be held prior to the Feb. 14 launching of the petition drive.

The meetings will be held in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Harrisburg.

The former Alabama governor has never said officially that he will be a third party presidential candidate this year, but he is all but certain to be one.

He has been campaigning actively for months, and has said repeatedly that he will be a candidate unless one of the two major parties fields a candidate and platform to his liking — something he says he expects neither to do.

He has been concentrating his efforts on gaining positions on general election ballots, and, earlier Wednesday, ruled out any possibility that he might run in the New Hampshire presidential primary March 12.

Wallace will have about three weeks to obtain the 10,551 signatures he needs to get on Pennsylvania's presidential ballot as an independent — from Feb. 14 to March 6.

The number of petition signatures needed represents one-half of one per cent of the largest vote received by any candidate in the last general election in the state.

Unlike California, where Wallace supporters had to re-register as members of the former governor's third party, only petition signatures by registered voters are needed in Pennsylvania.

Gov. Urges Settlement Of Strike

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer implored both parties in the violent coal strike in Western Pennsylvania Wednesday night to remain at the negotiating table until they settle their differences.

Shafer, after a joint meeting with representatives of the United Mine Workers Union and the Solar Fuel Co., said the negotiators promised to continue their talks here.

World News

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — U.S. Adm. Charles D. Griffin said Wednesday the build-up of Soviet naval power in the Mediterranean is a significant threat to Italy, Greece and Turkey.

Griffin, retiring commander of the southern European forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, said the Soviet position in the Mediterranean and the Middle East had been strengthened since the Arab-Israeli war last June.

He said the Soviet force included 25 to 40 surface ships, amphibious landing craft and "a sizable number of submarines." The admiral spoke at a news conference and ceremony turning his command over to Adm. Horacio Rivero.

LONDON (AP) — A caucus of Labor party members of Parliament on Wednesday confirmed the temporary suspension of 24 rebellious Labor MPs who refused to vote for the government's economy cuts in the House of Commons earlier this month.

The rebels were barred from attending party meetings for a month, a disciplinary measure recommended by the government and senior Labor MPs.

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Eisaku Sato indicated Wednesday his government would not allow U.S. submarines armed with nuclear missiles to visit Japanese ports.

The visit two weeks ago by the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise touched off widespread protests, but Sato said the U.S. aircraft carrier was not armed with nuclear weapons. He has also approved visits by nuclear-powered submarines.

He told Parliament that visits by submarines carrying Polaris missiles would be subject to prior consultations between Japan and the United States.

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban government announced Wednesday it will begin local rail service in Havana to ease the transportation shortage caused by gasoline rationing.

Prime Minister Fidel Castro announced gasoline rationing Jan. 2 and only a few private cars now are seen on Havana's streets. The bus system has been overtaxed by the increase in riders.

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek military government eased censorship of Greece's daily newspapers Wednesday for a 10-day trial period.

Michael Sideratos, head of the press information office, told editors that "direct criticism and comments will be permitted, but we will not tolerate factious remarks or double meanings."

The censorship imposed when the military regime took power in an April 21 coup will continue to preclude news of Cyprus and of the Greek armed forces.

Neither Shafer nor Hart would detail any of the provisions.

Since it began Monday, the strike has been punctuated by violence throughout the coal fields of Western Pennsylvania, and the State Police have been used to quell mass picketing.

Shafer defended the use of the State Police, to which union leaders have objected.

"The Pennsylvania State Police have to enforce the law," the governor said. "They have not been and will not be used for the purpose of breaking a strike. They will continue to be used when necessary to maintain order."

The strike, which began as a protest against State Police arrests of pickets, has spread into three states and idled an estimated 18,000 men.

Police said men burned the office, a union challenging the United Mine Workers Union Tuesday, overturned and burned a truck, then burned the Indiana County office of Mears Coal Co.

But Wednesday Indiana County Judge Edwin M. Clark issued an injunction banning mass picketing. State police assembled 100 men at Indiana's Jimmy Stewart Airport then patrolled the area. No incidents were reported.

An estimated 400 men picketed the Solar Fuel Co. mines in northern Somerset County. It was at Solar that Police arrested 104 men last week.

Solar officials met in Harrisburg for the second day with United Mine Workers leaders and State Secretary of Labor and Industry William Hart. Everyone declined comment.

The United Mine Workers, whose members in the soft coal fields of eastern Ohio and northern West Virginia joined their Pennsylvania comrades in the strike, has been trying to organize the small, independent mines which have been increasing in number in recent years.

Complacency One Reason Three Astronauts Died

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year-long Senate inquiry into the fiery death of three astronauts brought a conclusion Wednesday that "no single person bears all the responsibility for the Apollo 204 accident."

"Over-confidence and complacency" resulted from a prior successful series of manned flights in the earlier Mercury and Gemini projects, the Senate Space Committee said.

But the usually unanimous panel, which supervises the multibillion dollar space program, differed sharply in the degree of reprimands for top officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and the prime contractor for the lunar landing project, North

Skeletons From Prison Go to FBI

CUMMINS PRISON FARM, Ark. (AP) — Authorities said Wednesday that three skeletons taken from unmarked graves here would be sent to the FBI for tests that they hope will shed some light on whether the bones came from a paupers' graveyard or a secret burial ground for murdered inmates.

A spokesman for Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said no digging for more bodies would be done until the pathological tests are completed at the FBI laboratory in Washington. He estimated it would take 10 days to three weeks for the tests.

"We want to see if there is any evidence that these were homicides or natural deaths," said Bob Scott, the governor's prison adviser.

The skeletons were found Monday after Prison Supt. Thomas O. Murton ordered an investigation of long-standing rumors among inmates that convicts in past years had been murdered and secretly buried at the farm. One inmate, Reuben Johnson, 59, says he helped bury 10 or 12 inmates who were slain.

Maj. W. C. Struebing, head of the Criminal Investigation Division of the State Police, declined comment on the investigation Wednesday, but reiterated that he thought the bones were from an old paupers' cemetery.

He had support Wednesday from state Rep. Loid Sadler, a member of the Prison Board from 1945 to 1949 and again from 1955 to 1965. He said he knew the prison pasture where the bones were uncovered Monday was a graveyard for unclaimed bodies.

W. P. Ball, who retired as state pardons and paroles director late last year, termed as "ridiculous" Johnson's claim that about 20 inmates were killed during an escape on Labor Day in 1940. Prison records show that one of 36 escapees was killed and that 24 inmates were recaptured quickly. Ball, a state trooper at the time, said he believed that two or three prisoners were killed during the week-long manhunt.

Johnson, who led authorities to the gravesite Monday, is a wagon driver at the prison. He was first sent to prison in 1937 on a conviction for the slaying of his brother and has been in and out of the penitentiary since for robbery and parole violation.

Nixon, Romney Big Battlers In NH Primary

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—New Hampshire's presidential stakes closed Wednesday night with 15 entries for the March 12 primary, but only six of any real significance.

On the Republican side it is shaping up as a battle between former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Michigan Gov. George Romney, with a possible write-in for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, who says he isn't running.

Eleven Republicans' names were entered.

On the Democratic side Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., is entered as a peace candidate to test sentiment against President Johnson. The latter's supporters have a write-in campaign going for the President.

Another Democratic group is working on a write-in for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., despite his publicly expressed opposition.

The Democratic side has four entries.

While Nixon's name was entered by his supporters, it isn't until Thursday that he will make his expected announcement of his candidacy for a second try at the presidency.

Another final day entrant is perennial candidate Harold E. Stassen, the "boy wonder" governor of his home state of Minnesota 30 years ago.

Florida Gov. Claude R. Kirk Jr.'s name also was filed on the final day as an entrant for the Republican preference poll.

Former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, who has been appearing across the nation as a candidate for the presidency, failed to file.

American Aviation, Inc.

Thirteen members, led by Chairman Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, ranking Republican, urged that Administrator James E. Webb and other top NASA officials keep Congress fully informed on all its problems, including deficiencies of contractors.

But three committeemen, Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., charged both the space agency and its prime contractor with failing to keep Congress and the public properly informed prior to the tragedy at Cape Kennedy, Fla., on Jan. 27 of last year.

Mondale said the lunar project "was in deep and perilous trouble" before the accident and Congress was unaware of that fact.

When Congress learned about a critical NASA report on North American through outside sources, Mondale said, there were "deliberate efforts to mislead committee members and evade legitimate congressional inquiries during an investigation of this nation's worst space tragedy."

"NASA's performance—the evasiveness, the lack of candor, the patronizing attitude exhibited toward the Congress, the refusal to respond fully and forthrightly to legitimate congressional inquiries, and the solicitous concern for corporate sensitivity at a time of national tragedy—can only produce a loss of congressional and public confidence in NASA programs," Mondale wrote.

Percy and Brooke, in a separate statement, said: "We are disturbed at the possibility that, had there been no disaster, important shortcomings in management, scheduling, design, production and quality control might never have come to light."

There was no immediate comment from NASA on the report. North American spokesman said they wanted to study the report before commenting.

LBJ's Grandson Burns His Hand In Bowl of Chili

WASHINGTON (AP) — First President Johnson's little grandson burned his hand in a bowl of chili, then he pulled over a coffee table and wound up in a pile of glass with a bump on his head.

This latest report on the vicissitudes of 7-month-old Lyn Nugent in Texas came from a picture-taking session in Johnson's office.

Tuesday the President disclosed his grandson stuck his hand in a bowl of hot chili and burned his fingers.

Wednesday while Johnson was talking with the head of the National Grange he remarked that Lyn had pulled over a table with a glass bowl on it. The bowl shattered but Lyn escaped with nothing more serious than a bump on the head—not cuts.

The Grange master, Herschel Newsom, told reporters that naturally the President was concerned but none of the glass got in Lyn's eye.

White House officials said the presidential grandson is just an active little boy who is pulling himself up on things these days and this time he grabbed the tea cart in the home of his parents, Pat and Luci Nugent, at Austin, Tex.

Newsom heard the story when he came to the white House with Mr. and Mrs. John Bechtel, Lenhartsville, Pa., to present a plaque. Bechtel did the plaque in pen and ink in colors for presentation at the Centennial session of the Grange at Syracuse, N.Y., last November.

Johnson was unable to attend the convention so the plaque was presented Wednesday at the white House.

It said: "The National Grange salutes President and Mrs. Johnson for distinguished service to American agriculture and to rural life; for outstanding and effective dedication to a program to beautify America."

Gunman Robs Pittsburgh Bank

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A hefty gunman stole $12,800 from a bank Wednesday and a woman teller faked a faint to turn on the bank camera.

"Give me the money or I'll shoot," a bank spokesman quoted the man as saying to Gloria Price.

Mrs. Price filled the brown paper sack handed her, then faked a faint, spilling the money on the floor.

The gunman turned his pistol on Ken Kachman, an office equipment salesman behind the counter. "Give me the money or I'll shoot you," he said.

Kachman scooped up the cash. A spokesman for the Pittsburgh National Bank said the man, a 280-pounder, escaped on foot from the downtown office.

The loganberry originated in the garden of Judge J. H. Logan at Santa Cruz, Calif., in 1881.

Guy McCloskey Shows Slides To Kiwanians

Slides taken over a period of years by Guy McCloskey highlighted the program Tuesday night at the Youngsville Kiwanis Club meeting.

The pictures were taken in the Warren County area, fishing in Canada, old forts viewed en route to Florida and places of beauty and gorgeous colored flowers and plants.

Harold McAdoo was inducted as a new Youngsville Kiwanian by Ken Franklin and Leo Johnson reported on an inter-club visit to Warren Kiwanis Club last week.

Gib Johnson reported that the sale of fruit cakes during the holidays was a financial success.

Four members of the Warren club, James Blomquist past-nutrient governor; Clyde Loomis, Russell Templeton and Marshall Linnman were guests at the meeting.

Singing was conducted by Bob Kellerman and Rook Orvat. There were 23 members present at the regular weekly dinner meeting at the Methodist Church including guests from Warren.

Board Contemplates $3.3 Million Program

The State Department of Public Instruction said yesterday it has been requested by the Warren County School Board to make a survey of capacities of schools in the county district to determine the feasibility of entering into a construction program estimated at $3,330,000, involving three schools and an administration center.

One of the projects for which department approval was asked was construction of a central office building in Warren to serve as administration center for 29 schools in the Warren County School District. Cost of this project was estimated at $400,000 and the structure would accommodate a staff of 40 persons.

The school district would build an addition to North Warren Elementary School at an estimated cost of $1,105,000. The South Street Elementary School in Warren would be built at a cost placed at $975,000.

An addition, estimated at $850,000, would be built to Warren Area High School. Construction of these projects is dependent on approval of the department, it was pointed out. Costs of these projects, should the department approve their construction, would be financed through issuance of municipality authority bonds, according to the application by the Warren County School Board for department clearance of the program.

County School Enrollments Up 0.47%

(TMO Harrisburg Bureau) HARRISBURG — Enrollments in Warren County public schools during the current 1967-68 school year are up from last year, but under the increase in pupil enrollment for the state as a whole, the State Department of Public Instruction said yesterday.

Warren County public school enrollment for the current year is recorded as 11,148, an increase of 0.47 per cent over last year, but still under the statewide increase of 2.20 per cent.

The 11,148 enrollment for the county includes 4995 secondary pupils (up 0.79 per cent) and 6153 pupils in elementary schools of the county, which includes kindergarten enrollments, for an increase over last year of 0.21 per cent. (As a point of further comparison, six years ago during the 1961-62 school year total Warren County public school enrollments stood at 9851—comprising 4083 students in secondary schools and 5768 in elementary schools of the county.)

As for nonpublic schools in the county (private and parochial schools) elementary enrollment dropped 10.19 per cent from last year to a current 141 students (again including kindergarten enrollment). There are no nonpublic secondary schools in Warren County.

Department records show one elementary school on the non-public school front in Warren County, for which there are four elementary teachers.

Ice Jam Above Pittsburgh On Allegheny Breaks Up

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Western Pennsylvania rivers and streams, swollen by rain and melted snow, flooded roads and small communities Wednesday, but a troublesome ice gorge in the Allegheny River broke up and moved downstream.

River forecasters predicted the Ohio River would crest two feet below flood stage at Pittsburgh Wednesday night. They said the Monongahela was rising, but wouldn't go above flood levels.

French Creek in northwestern Pennsylvania flooded two highways, and downstream towns were threatened by water backing up behind an ice gorge. The Allegheny River towns of East Brady, Parker and Foxburg had flooding before the gorge moved out. The miles-long mass of ice forms nearly every winter on a river bend at East Brady, backing up water behind it and threatening downstream towns with a wave of high water if there is a sudden thaw.

The backup of water blocked Pennsylvania 68 at East Brady, flooded cellars in Parker and hit Foxburg with its worst flood since 1959. A married couple was evacuated from their home in the tiny community.

In Kittanning, midway between East Brady and Pittsburgh, water went a foot above flood stage then dropped rapidly.

Vernon Houghton, head of the federal-state flood forecasting service in Pittsburgh, was relieved about the breakup of the gorge. "I like to see it get out instead of having a sword hanging over our heads in the spring," he said.

But another ice gorge in French Creek still posed a threat. The gorge, which built up around Sagertown, moved downstream Tuesday, and Houghton had hoped it would dissipate. But the mass of ice lodged in the stream's shallow channel at Cochran below Meadville.

With the threat of more showers Thursday, Houghton said, the gorge could cause some problems upstream. The creek was rising slowly Wednesday at Cambridge Springs and Meadville, but had better than a foot to go before reaching flood stages.

Farther upstream in Erie County, the runoff of rain and melted snow forced French Creek onto U.S. 6-N at Mill Village and Pennsylvania 8 at Wattsburg, closing both roads. Near Lake City, rain washed out an earth fill supporting 400 feet of Norfolk & Western Railway track in a swampy area.

Sandy Creek in Mercer County spilled out of its embankments, flooding yards, roads and cellars in the Sandy Lake and Stoneboro areas, but nobody had to be evacuated.

On the eastern end of the state, the weather bureau said there was some ice clogging the upper reaches of the Juniata west branch and Susquehanna. No flooding was reported.

Pennsylvania Happenings

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "The Vietnam war has been hard on legs, about 20 per cent worse than World War II and the Korean war. The mines do it, and the booby traps."

So says 58-year-old Frank J. Malone who operates an unusual shop in Philadelphia. He makes and fits artificial limbs, mostly now for those soldiers and Marines wounded in the Vietnam fighting.

The shelves of his place are stocked with thousands of arms and legs and hands—all shapes, all sizes.

"These give us something to work on," says Malone. "They are mass produced. We refine these limbs and make them fit the amputee's needs."

Malone wears an artificial leg himself. He lost his own while a child when he fell under a trolley.

"I became interested in the business because of my leg," says Malone. "I went to all kinds of schools. The more I learned, the less satisfied I became with my artificial leg. So I made my own."

Legs today are made mostly of willow wood, or plastics. "Willow is light and tough," says Malone. "There used to be lots of aluminum legs, but they are going out of style. More and more, we're using plastic materials, though there still is a great demand for wood."

Malone fits 50 to 60 legs every month, and around a dozen arms and hands.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 10-year-old son, who is very large for his age, answered me in a manner which I considered disrespectful and smart-alecky. I turned around and gave him a swat on the bottom. He grabbed hold of my hand and twisted my wrist.

When his father came home I told him about the incident and he replied, "That's all right. The boy was merely protecting himself." This conversation took place in front of the boy who sat there smirking because his Dad had taken his side.

The next day I went to hit the boy with a belt. He snatched it away from me and shouted, "Dad says I should protect myself and I'm going to do it."

The boy's father has never laid a hand on him. I've always had to do all the disciplining. Now that the boy is getting older I think his dad should hit him and not leave it to me. Please give me your views as things are going from bad to worse.—N.Y.

DEAR N.Y.: Don't expect a father who has never disciplined a child to "take over" all of a sudden. He won't do it. Your best bet is to stop hitting the kid and come up with punishment that means something—such as no TV, no movie, no dessert, no ballgame. When "spankings" turn into hand-to-hand combat it's time for a change of tactics, Mother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband reads your column and thinks you have "a lot of brains—for a woman." Please try and make him see my side.

I have some friends who could spend the whole day on the phone. There are times when I just let the phone ring because I'm too busy or not in the mood to talk.

My husband has told me I must always answer the phone, in case someone has something important to tell me. I still think it is better not to take a chance on getting caught by my gabby friends, so I don't answer if I don't feel like it.

The other day my husband tried to phone me and I did not answer. He telephoned our next door neighbor and asked her to come over and see if I was at home. When she reported that I was here he got so mad he called the phone company and instructed them to take the phone out. I have been without a phone for five days and I'm going crazy. Please tell him he is a nut and to put the phone back in.—OUT OF TOUCH

Art Show Open To Public Tomorrow Through The 11th

The February meeting of the Warren Art League to be held at 7:30 this evening at the Art Center, 345 E. Fifth avenue, is the forerunner of the Members Art Show which opens to the public tomorrow evening from 7:30 to 9:30. The meeting this evening is in the form of a members preview and awards will be made.

Melvin Heeden, instructor of art at Jamestown Community College, and supervisor of art in Frewsburg Central School district, graduate of Albright Art School, Buffalo, and holder of a Master of Science Degree in his field, from the University of Wisconsin, is judging the works exhibited.

The Warren Public Library will display an exhibit at the Members Art Show which continues with afternoon hours from 1:30 to 4:30 and evening hours 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., until Sunday February 11. Sunday hours are 1:30 to 4:30 only.

Handpainted baskets and the League's notepaper will also be sold. All entries will be priced for sale or else clearly marked "Not for Sale".

Award winners will be announced to the public tomorrow.

DEAR OUT: A woman who would let a phone ring in order to duck her gabby friends should not be calling anyone else a nut.

If you promise to answer the phone from now on I will ask your husband to re-establish the telephone service and give you another chance. How about it?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When a person says, "Please stop me if you've heard this one," is it good manners to stop him if you have actually heard the joke before?

I have always kept quiet but I'm beginning to think perhaps I should take the drawing room bores at their word—especially the ones who crucify a good story because they can't handle the dialect.

What's your opinion?—HO HUM

DEAR HO: The person who invites you to stop him if you've heard the story doesn't really want you to stop him. He wants to tell the story. So, let him. Consider it an exercise in discipline for you—and therapy for him.

Do you feel ill at ease... out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamp, self-addressed envelope.

Vestrymen Elected At Trinity Service

Four vestrymen were elected Sunday at the annual parish meeting of Trinity Memorial Episcopal Church in the context of the 10:30 a. m. service.

Named were Ralph L. Brown, Grant Noel, Richard G. Smith and Winston Teague. D. E. Conaway was re-elected treasurer and John Donaldson, parish clerk.

The Rev. Richard H. Baker, rector, advised parishioners that during the past year the Warren church had become involved in three significant areas. Members were introduced to the new liturgy through pastoral order of Bishop William Crittenden and a lay committee of 10 persons appointed to evaluate the liturgy and report to the vestry.

Mr. Baker also noted Trinity participated in the student training program and was for eight weeks exposed to a student from General Seminary. He urged this involvement to continue.

The grants made in 1967 by the grants committee were reviewed with emphasis on the response from St. John the Divine Episcopal Church in Agana, Guam, and from The Rev. Jordan B. P. Peck Jr. Among the grants approved was that to provide for new construction in Agana with Mr. Peck stating that groundbreaking took place January 14 with the Rt. Rev. Harry S. Kennedy, Bishop of the Diocese of Honolulu present.

A contract for the new construction on Guam will be signed soon and actual building will continue from March through October.

Mr. Peck noted the two newspapers in Agana had carried pictures and stories of the building program and that he had received several copies from various sources of the feature story in the Dec. 7 Warren Times-Mirror and Observer relative to the project.

Reports were received from the various organizations within the church and all departments and organizations commended by the rector.

Mr. Baker, with Canon Ralph Hovencamp of New Castle, have been named supervisors to the Middle Atlantic Conference.

The rector stated that in holding the annual meeting in conjunction with the morning service, a departure from tradition, the session was well attended.

Spring, Summer Fashions Forecast From Paris

PARIS (AP) — There's no doubt about it, if you specialize in suits day clothes as well as Coco Chanel does, you can draw as big a crowd to your spring and summer showing as the most glamorous of the lot.

And Monday Miss Chanel's salons were packed with celeb-erity row, spiced with top French clients.

Up at the top of the stairs sat Coco herself. She looked her usual self, in good health and not a day older than her ru-mored 85, 86 or 87.

The show started with several suits expressing the total look with a matching hat, and one color in the suit as rose, later forget-me-not blue. Hemlines covered kneecaps.

Beautiful spring tweeds are used in varied weights in Chan-el's immortal little suits. The silhouette is about the same. Jackets are mostly bracelet length. Edges always bound in colored wool, or wool embroi-dery. A heavy tussor suit has smart bureau braver pockets bound in rust shantung, match-ing the simple overblouse.

Gold necklaces, and chains set in mock emeralds or pearls, decorate the dress or blouse in-side the jacket. Very little out-side decor this time.

Little evening dresses in pleated chiffon are charming and understated. They have over-dresses overlapping at the left side. A satin ribbon and bow is fixed in place with a beautiful

Opening lead: King of ♥.
A persistent assault on his trump holding, combined with an adverse division in the suit, threatened South's five diamond contract. In order to sever the opponents' line of communications and disrupt their attack, he found it necessary to borrow a page from the defense's own book. West opened the king of hearts and continued with the queen which South ruffed. There appeared to be little more to the deal than to drive out the ace of trumps, for declarer was solid in the other suits. He, therefore, led the king of diamonds and, when this was permitted to hold, he continued with the queen.

West showed out on the second round discarding a heart and East ducked again. South was now obliged to abandon the trump suit temporarily for, if he led the jack which was his only remaining diamond, East would play the ace and return a heart for his partner to cash the setting trick. A fourth round of hearts would then dislodge dummy's last trump and thereby establish East's seven diamonds.

When the queen of diamonds held, declarer crossed over to the ace of spades and ruffed a heart with the jack of diamonds. Dummy was reentered with the jack of clubs to lead the nine of diamonds. South's only hope was that, when East got in with the ace, he had no more hearts to return.

East played the ace of trumps and, fortunately for his opponent, he was unable to force out the nine of diamonds with another round of hearts. He shifted to a spade and South played the king, entered dummy with the ace of clubs, to pull the last trump and claimed the balance.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1968

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Keep system and harmony uppermost and flaws in your schedule can be weeded out more readily. Cooperation important now. TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Consider well duties and extras asked of you and those you would like to accept. Be a wise chooser; results will be long-lasting. GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Outwit needless controversy, contentious people. You can gain many points now.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Ask if it's pertinent, then is it well-prepared before you consider taking on a new assignment. Without realizing it, you may be contrary!

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Collaborate with those working for sound projects. Add your own carefully considered ideas.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Don't promote where you do not have full knowledge, but don't appear changeable or too hesitant to accept what may be a clever stratagem.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Present plans early, and listen to those of others. A better meeting of minds needed. Be clear, concise; strive for best policy for all. SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—Head off unpleasant disputes, becoming involved in others' controversies and private affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Do you really recognize your own drives? And if you are repelling or attracting assistance? Work conscientiously at cooperation.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Ups and downs? You can make the "ups" stronger, fortify future gains with awareness, knowledge of duties, good timing.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Not all directives and action will please, but neither will you fully satisfy others. Aim for stability.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—While dreaming of those unattained goals and striving for better standing, do not overlook important everyday items and relationships.

YOU BORN TODAY are strong in courage and have outstanding abilities. You attract friends easily, like to be with people, though do your best planning in quiet. A constructive worker, with big ideas for attainment, you can make many come true through dogged persistence. You have abundant talent and a liking for the artistic. Birthdate of: Victor Herbert, Amer. composer.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

READERS WRITE

One of our readers asked about mouse milk. He had heard that it was sold in Vienna and brought a good price. "Do you have any additional information on this? If there is a demand for this milk, mouse farming could be profitable."

I told him that we had not heard of this and wondered what mice had that cows did not. After we published his question, my copy of Medical World News arrived. In it was a story about a mouse milking machine that extracts one-quarter teaspoonful of milk each day. The device was developed by two researchers at the National Cancer Institute in Washington.

The investigators are working on tumor-causing viruses and mice susceptible to breast cancer usually have milk rich in viral particles. Their miniature milking machine extracts the liquid without damage to the mammary tissue of the rodent.

If our reader starts a mouse farm, he will have to be an authority on these critters because only those types susceptible to cancer will be in demand for the above mentioned project.

Friends of a retired nurse told her about a young woman who had a heart attack while pregnant. She doubts that this occurs and wants me to agree with her so that she can "save face" at the bridge club. I wish I could, but at least three dozen cases have been reported in the medical literature. One of my colleagues cared for a woman who sustained an attack of coronary thrombosis with a recurrence while in labor.

We admit that this case is a rarity because heart attacks are not prevalent in young women. Furthermore, estrogen hormones that normally protect them from the disease are increased during pregnancy. In the cases reported, most of the victims were over 35 and had more than one child. Many had early hardening of the coronary arteries because of high blood pressure or diabetes. A few had syphilis of the heart. The strain of motherhood is during the first few months of pregnancy. In other words, the stage is set for coronary thrombosis long before the woman becomes pregnant.

TOMORROW: A Longer Life.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

PALPITATION

G. M. R. writes: What are heart palpitations?

REPLY

Palpitation is awareness of the heart beating fast or hard. It occurs in normal and abnormal hearts and may be associated with indigestion or follow excitement, nervousness, exertion, and overindulgence. Certain irregularities of the heartbeat produce an uncomfortable sensation.

CRACKS IN MEMBRANE

C. R. writes: Can you tell me something about fissures in the rectum?

REPLY

My ideas on the subject have been incorporated into a leaflet which may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

RECOVERY IN ENCEPHALITIS

Mrs. J. R. writes: Is complete recovery possible in encephalitis?

REPLY

Yes, but it is difficult to predict because certain after-effects, such as palsy, may be delayed for several decades.

WHEN FULLY GROWN?

Mrs. S. R. writes: At what age do you attain maximum height and weight?

REPLY

Height: by age 20. Weight: ?

AT CHAUTAUQUA

Whallon Named Music Director

CHAUTAUQUA, N.Y. — Announcement has just been made by Joseph C. Clarke, vice president education, Chautauqua Institution, of the appointment of Dr. Evan Whallon as director of Music. Whallon is in his twelfth season as director and conductor of the Columbus (Ohio) Symphony Orchestra. To Chautauquans, he is well-known and admired as Musical Director and Conductor of the Chautauqua Opera Association, a position he will continue to hold.

At the age of 25, Evan Whallon was chosen to make a symphonic debut with the Philadelphia Orchestra as winner of the Young Conductor's Competition sponsored by Eugene Ormandy. Finishing his master's degree at Eastman, he went to New York to become music director of Gian Carlo Menotti's opera, "The Consul," conducting over 200 performances on Broadway and on tour. Following completion of the tour, Whallon served as music consultant to Columbia Records. He was later selected from more than 85 candidates to become conductor and music director of the Springfield (Ohio) Symphony Orchestra. In 1956 he left the Springfield Symphony to concentrate his efforts with the Columbus Symphony and to accept a faculty position with Ohio State University.

Aside from his regular conducting duties, Whallon is a frequent guest conductor. He has conducted the Buffalo Philharmonic, the Dayton Philharmonic, the Boston Arts Festival, the St. Louis Little Symphony, the Wilmington Arts Festival, as well as the New York City Center. He is a regular conductor in Rochester's "Opera Under the Stars." As a Kulas Fellowship winner, Whallon conducted the Cleveland Symphony in Severance Hall in 1960. In the summer of 1962, he was invited to conduct two operas at the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, for which he received the finest critical acclaim.

Under Whallon's guidance, the Columbus Symphony Orchestra has tripled in size and is now a leading Metropolitan Orchestra. The subscription audience has quadrupled (in a 4000-seat hall).

The citizens of Columbus have shown their appreciation in many ways, including naming him one of the ten outstanding men of 1960. His contributions to the area have been recognized by citations from the Columbus City Council, the Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the award of an honorary doctorate degree in music from Denison University.

Market Sinks Again But Trading Active

NEW YORK (AP) — The recently high-flying glamor stocks were pummeled again Wednesday as the stock market sank in active trading. Investors' disenchantment with the volatile issues expanded to the blue chips and the decline spread broadly through the market. Brokers said there was evident discouragement among investors about the critical situation in Asia and with dissatisfaction expressed about President Johnson's budget. The market was lower from the start and prices drifted to their lowest levels. The margin of declines over advances among individual stocks widened as the session progressed. Volume slipped to 9.42 million shares from 10.12 million Tuesday but was at its peak at the close. The New York Stock Exchange ticker tape was two minutes late in reporting floor transactions at the final bell. Motors, rubbers, mail order, retails, farm implements, aircrafts, electronics, rails, airlines, tobacco and drugs were mostly lower. Oils advanced. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 4.10 to 855.47. The Associated Press 60-stock average declined 1.6 to 313.0 with industrials off 2.0, rails off .3 and utilities off 1.4. Of 1,463 issues traded, 903 declined and 339 advanced. New 1967-68 lows exceeded new highs by 34 to 17. Among the 15 most active issues, 9 declined and 6 advanced. American Photocopy, off 1 1/2 at 19 on 188,300 shares, was most active. Losses among the glamor stocks included IBM 15; Control Data 9; Teldyne 6.
